SIX GERMANS INDICTED FOR MURDER IN BIG PLOT

BIG BOMB SEIZURE IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Max Breitung and his five associates in the so-called German bomb plot, who are under indictment on the charge of plotting to destroy ships at sea carrying ammunition to the allies, were indicted for murder today by a federal Grand Jury.

The others indicted, in addition to Breitung, are Robert Fay, Walter Scholz, Herbert Kienzle, Engelbert Bronckhorst and Paul Daeche.

Breitung, Kienzle and Daeche are at liberty on $25,000 bail. The other six are in Tombs prison.

Today's additional indictments against the alleged plotters were handed up to Federal Judge Mayer.

EXPLOSIVES SEIZED.

Acting on directions of the secret service, a squad of police this afternoon arrested three aliens and seized a great quantity of chemicals and explosives in an apartment on the third floor at No. 508 East Seventy-eighth street.

The arrested persons gave the names of Eugene Kluger, Mrs. Kluger, his wife, and Anton S. Mente.

Thousands of letters in German and Hungarian from all parts of the United States were found. These were addressed to Mente.

Deny Swedish Aid to Von Bernstorff

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A sweeping denial of the charges that German Ambassador von Bernstorff was able to communicate with his superiors in Berlin through the friendly agency of the Swedish embassy here was issued today by the Swedish legation.

"Similar charges have been made from inspired British sources often since the war started," it was stated. "It is true that the Swedish office cable bills have jumped since the war started, but it was in the course of regular business. There is no foundation for the stories."

Big German Birth Decrease Since War

REQUEST REASONS OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Count von Bernstorff today presented to the State Department a communication asking for the reasons for the request for the withdrawal of Captain Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen, the German naval and military attaches, respectively.

It is understood that Germany has taken the position that she cannot recall the officers unless the United States can show proof that they have violated the laws of this country.

The action is declared by officials to be without precedent. Heretofore when a nation has made it known that the envoys of another are persona non grata, the envoys have always been withdrawn without further parleying.

Officials would not discuss the report nor indicate what action this government would take.

Confidential advices received here from Berlin indicate that the demand for the recall of Captains Boy-Ed and Von Papen has created a bitter feeling throughout Germany.

It is said that the decision of the German Foreign Office to demand an explanation of the United States was reached after careful consideration had been given to public feeling. Germany is understood to make the charge that most of the evidence against Captains Von Papen and Boy-Ed was manufactured by British secret agents in this country.

The reason Germany wants the charges against the attaches made public is that she may then have an opportunity to prove that British agents have been active in this country.

If the United States should refuse to make public the evidence on which it based its request for the recall of the attaches it was said that Germany might send home the American military and naval attaches in Berlin.

Reports Two Boats in Ancona Attack

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A dispatch from American Consul Mason at Tunis today further clouded the facts surrounding the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona with the loss of several American lives. Consul Mason cabled that the story of Giuseppe Torrino, a survivor, indicates that he, at least, thought there were two submarines in the attack on the liner. All other witnesses have declared they saw but one.

Greek Ultimatum Threat by Allies

PARIS, Dec. 6.—The allies have threatened to send an ultimatum to Greece if the Greek reply to the second note is not satisfactory, it is learned from a high official source.

CONGRESS CONVENES TODAY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The atmosphere of world-strife, bred in battle-torn Europe, settled over the opening session of the Sixty-fourth Congress of the United States, which convened today.

A flood of resolutions and bills seeking to establish world peace; to prepare the United States for war, and to handle the problems growing out of the European struggle deluged Congress five minutes after the gavels fell in the House and Senate.

Crowded galleries in both House and Senate viewed the formal exercises which opened Congress, and in both Houses the attendance on the floor was extraordinarily large.

PRAYER FOR PEACE.

The galleries set aside for the diplomatic corps, however, yawned vacantly, and only one representative of the executive branch of the government, Postmaster General Burleson, was on hand. He joined the throng on the floor of the House, or which he was formerly a member.

To the House Rev. H. D. Couden, the blind chaplain, prayed for guidance and peace. "Grant, O Lord," he prayed, "that the war in which our sister nations are now engaged, with its disturbing and degrading effects, may cease; that the highest and noblest inspirations of human nature may prevail, and that their differences may be adjusted by rational and peaceful methods."

The organization of both House and Senate was accomplished with the usual formalities, and Senators Kern and Gallinger, with Representatives Ritchin, Fitzgerald and Mann, were appointed as a committee to notify

FRANCE'S PEACE TERMS

By International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—France's peace terms were made public today by Albert Thomas, French Minister of Munitions. They are:

1—Restoration of Alsace and Lorraine to France.

2—Independence of Belgium and Serbia restored.

3—German militarism crushed.

FORD SMILING, SHIP MAKING GOOD TIME

By HELEN BULLETT LOWRY.

ON BOARD FORD PEACE SHIP OSCAR II., at Sea (by wireless), Dec. 6.—Optimistic and smiling, Henry Ford, apostle of peace and leader of the little band of men and women who are on their way to Europe to try and end the war, is the soul of the ship.

"Even if we do not succeed in putting an end to the great conflict, I am convinced that our efforts will not have been wasted," said Mr. Ford.

The weather was fair today and the ship was making good time. Everyone on board is enjoying himself, although there are a few cases of seasickness.

The two squirrels which some unknown donor presented to the peace party on Saturday as a joke have been christened Henry and William. Their cage occupies a conspicuous position in the ship's library. Mr. Ford enjoyed the joke as much as anyone else.

MYSTERY IN WIRELESS NOTE FROM VESSEL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Official confirmation of an attack on an unidentified American steamship by a submarine in the Mediterranean was received by the State Department today.

American Minister Croppers, at Athens, cabled that the Greek government had notified him that a wireless message had been caught from an American vessel saying it was being attacked.

Minister Croppers added that the Greek government has sent a destroyer to search for the vessel. Following is the message picked up at the wireless station:

"Being fired on by submarines. Position 33:20 north, 24 east."

Since this was received nothing has been heard of the American vessel.

Several United States warships, including colliers and supply vessels, are reported as in the vicinity where the attack occurred.

Official word that an unidentified American steamship had been attacked by a submarine in the Mediterranean Sea centred the attention of Boston shipping circles on efforts to learn the name and fate of the ship.

It is not known whether the

CONFIRM REPORT U. S. SHIP WAS ATTACKED BY SUBMARINE

ship was sunk, but it is feared that it was, as no report has come from it since it was attacked. The situation is grave because several United States naval vessels are in the Mediterranean, and one of them may have been the victim.

The interest of Boston shipping men increased when it was learned that at least one steamer hailing from this port might be in Mediterranean waters. This is the collier Plymouth, belonging to the Coastwise Transportation Company of No. 40 Central street, Boston.

The scene of the attack is about 140 miles due south of the island of Crete, about 75 miles northeast of Derna on the coast of Tripoli, and something over 400 miles from Alexandria.

These distances would indicate that the Plymouth had passed over the scene of the attack two weeks ago. The point is directly on the trade route from Malta to Alexandria.

None of the cable dispatches mention the date on which the wireless was picked up from the attacked ship.

The City of Memphis sailed from New York November 20 for Spezia, Italy, and the City of Macon sailed from New York November 5 arriving in Spezia last week. This apparently places both these liners many miles west of the point where the submarine fired on the unidentified vessel.

The American naval collier Caesar, which had been mentioned as being in the eastern Mediterranean, has reported her safe arrival at Alexandria.

Efforts of shipping men today were directed at gradually reducing the number of possibilities by a process of elimination. Marine bureaus in New York made strenuous efforts to identify the ship which was being attacked by the submarine when last heard from.

The cabled messages make no statement as to the nationality of the submarine. For several weeks Austrian undersea craft have been operating in Mediterranean waters and have sent a number of the allies' ships to the bottom. So far as has been reported British submarines have confined their activities to waters around the Dardanelles.

The first report of the attack on the unknown American vessel was cabled from Athens on Saturday. This remained unconfirmed until today.

Roosevelt Stands for Immediate Defence Measure

BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

I believe that the question of national preparedness is one that transcends party lines.

I think that both Republicans and Democrats should put aside partisanship in the matter and that Congress should reject the utterly inadequate measures, not even half-measures set forth in the President's Manhattan Club speech, and should give a genuine measure of preparedness by providing not within five years but at once for a navy that will make us the second naval power in the world, by securing such reorganization of the navy as will prevent a repetition of such frightful mishandling of the navy as that which caused it to deteriorate probably 50 per cent in efficiency during 1913 and 1914, by securing provision at once for a professional army of at least a quarter of a million men, an army which relatively to the population of the United States would be no bigger than the police force of New York is relatively to the population of the city of New York.

We should abandon at once the attempt to create an inefficient volunteer force as the so-called continental army or any similar organization which will only be an inefficient rival of the national guard. We should put back of the regular army a reserve of trained troops.

PREPARATION DEMANDED.

We should provide for a very large increase of officers and finally, in my judgment, we should work steadily toward the only thoroughly adequate and proper system for a democracy, the system of universal preparation by universal service on the lines of the plans successfully applied in the real democracies of Switzerland and Australia, adapting the system to our own needs and uses.

It is well to remember that in both Switzerland and Australia it was the extreme popular party, the party of the laboring men and small farmers, who most of all insisted upon military service.

It is said by the admirers of President Wilson he has kept us out of war. Last Sunday papers contained news of the shooting by Mexican soldiers, followers of Carranza, whom Mr. Wilson has recognized, of Americans soldiers on the United States border.

Today comes the news of the blowing up of a munition plant which German workmen were ordered to leave, and the consequent loss of thirty-one lives. No reasonable man questions for one moment that these lives were lost in consequence of the methodically arranged campaign of destruction carried on by the direction of and with the encouragement of the German and Austrian governments.

"KEEPING THE PEACE."

During the time that President Wilson has, as his supporters say, kept peace a hundred and fifty soldiers of the United States army and enlisted men of the United States navy have been killed or wounded on the Mexican border in Vera Cruz and Haiti.

During the last few months hundreds of our citizens have been killed on the high seas by German and Austrian submarines, and in munition plants on our own soil, which have been wrecked in pursuance of the German and Austrian plots to which the papers have repeatedly spoken of in the columns and because of which one Ambassador has been sent home.

In other words, during this time that Mr. Wilson has been keeping the peace, Germany and Austria and Mexico have "waged peace" against us with an energy that has resulted in a greater loss of American lives and a greater destruction of America property than occurred during the war that we waged with Spain.

WIN DESPERATE BURGLAR FIGHT IN TAUNTON

TAUNTON, Dec. 6.—Surprised in the act of robbing the residence of Samuel E. Hall at North Raynham, a burglar whom the police say is Joseph Monteiro was overcome after a struggle during which a razor, a revolver and a pair of shoes were used.

Monteiro appeared in Taunton Court today to answer to the charge of breaking and entering in the night time and was held in $1,500.

According to the police the burglar entered the room of Mrs. Frank Leonard, daughter of Mr. Hall, Mr. Hall and Mrs. Leonard's husband appeared in answer to her screams and grappled with the burglar. He drew a razor and attempted to use it on the two men struggling with him, the police say, all the while trying to draw a revolver. Grasping one of the shoes of the burglar, which were tied together and hung around his neck, Mr. Hall beat him into insensibility and started to tie his hands and feet.

The burglar soon regained consciousness and the fight was renewed and continued until the arrival of the police automobile from Raynham, six miles away.

McCALL HOME, GIVES IDEA OF MESSAGE

Governor-elect McCall announced today, upon his return to Boston from a four weeks' vacation in the West, that his inaugural message would contain a "strong recommendation" to the next Legislature to provide for a free, non-partisan constitutional convention.

"I shall recommend a convention to which the delegates shall be elected without party designation," declared Mr. McCall.

The Governor-elect also let it be known that he would urge the Legislature to provide that any changes in the constitution adopted by the proposed convention should be submitted separately and independently to the voters for their acceptance or rejection.

Mr. McCall arrived in the South Station at noon on the Twentieth Century Limited, having come directly from Chicago, where he put in the last few days of his long Western trip with one of his sons, Sumner McCall.

As he stepped from the train he was greeted by a delegation of prominent Republicans, including Charles S. Baxter, who was his campaign manager in the primary and State election, and Colonel John H. Sherburne, the Republican "whip" of the last Legislature. Mr. Baxter was the first person to shake Mr. McCall's hand as he stepped from the train.

NOW EAGER FOR WORK.

"In Coos county, where I was thoroughly rested and eager to take up the important work preceding his administration. One of the first calls he will make, he said, will be upon Governor Walsh, to request the use of a room at the State House at which to confer with department heads on the preparation of his inaugural address.

When informed that a "little Presidential boom" had been started for him, as a result of his victory at the last election, Mr. McCall replied, "I am honored," with a smile. He declined to discuss that "little boom."

Asked if he would indorse the Presidential candidacy of United States Senator John Wingate Weeks, he requested to be excused from making a reply.

Governor-elect McCall said he regarded the taxation question as "the most pressing problem" confronting the next Legislature, and that he would immediately confer with taxation experts.

"The West is in good shape," he said. "The last two crops are good and the prices are high. The Democracy is not responsible for either the crops or the prices, but they will not suffer from them at the next Presidential election. On the other hand, they say in the West that the Pacific Slope States will go Republican at the next election," he added.

Mr. McCall declared that he would study the various commissions with the view of either consolidating some, and possibly abolishing others, if efficiency and economy would permit.

ASKS OPINION ON POLICIES.

On the subject of appointment, he admitted that the eager ones had been able to find out where he was stopping on his trip. "I am not without advice," he smiled. He added, seriously, "I would appreciate, far more, suggestions on matters of policy.

Governor-elect McCall was accompanied from Pittsfield by Frank W. Stearns, a Boston merchant, who was prominent in the Republican campaign. He and Mr. Stearns said their meeting was "accidental."

"I feel that I should remove myself from the ordinary surroundings in order to secure a much-needed rest after my campaign, so I went on the Western trip four weeks ago today," said Mr. McCall. Mr. Baxter had worked hard and was in need of a rest, so I invited him to come with me.

"I have had a thoroughly interesting time. We went through the Canadian Rockies in zero weather on as perfect a day as I ever saw. The views were beyond description.

"There is depression in the Canadian cities, particularly at Vancouver and Victoria, which have sent many men to the trenches.

"From Portland, O., we went into the centre of the State, to Prineville, where my son Hal has a ranch. Beautifully situated between a cascade and the Rocky Mountains, 3,000 feet above the set in the valley of the Deschutes River. The district is fertile, there is a big eastern colony and the farms are stocked with thoroughbred stock.

MAKES SCHOOL SPEECH.

"It was there I violated my promise to myself not to make a speech. The teacher prevailed upon me and I spoke to the pupils of the local public school. My son's family are in excellent health and his two boys, whom I had not seen since they were small, kept me busily engaged in mimic battles, including pillow fights.

"On our return to Portland we were entertained by newspapermen who met us at the station. We put in three days at the San Francisco Exposition. The fair was superb, absolutely beyond description and the Massachusetts Building is a tribute to this State."

From San Francisco, Mr. McCall went to Los Angeles and returned to Chicago through the Grand Canyon. The scenery, he said, is "beyond description."

As to whether he would enter the Republican primary next year against Senator Lodge, he said, "My chief desire now is to marry out fully the pledges made by my party and myself." Mr. McCall's answer left the impression that he would not be a candidate against Lodge.

Of the latest trip, Mr. McCall said, "It can do no harm."

Submarine Lost 25 Years Found at Last

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The submarine Fulkiller, which has been missing for twenty-five years, has been found at the bottom of the Chicago River. The Fulkiller was so called because it first made its appearance shortly after the great Chicago fire, when submarines were unheard of, and drowned his original owner when it made a trial trip.

BIG PROBLEMS AS CONGRESS CONVENES

JOINT SESSION TOMORROW.

Arrangements were made for a joint session of both House and Senate at 12.30 tomorrow to receive what promises to be President Wilson's most important official communication. The threatened cloture fight in the Senate was avoided, and in the House delay by Republican Leader Mann in presenting his committee assignments, put off the election of House committees.

Senator Clarke of Arkansas was elected president pro tempore of the Senate and Speaker Clark was reelected to the house.

Among the important political and legislative problems confronting the new Congress are:

An international situation, brought about by the European war which demands immediate attention, earnest consideration and delicate handling if the neutrality of the United States is to be safeguarded.

A demand for immediate and material increase in the army and navy and general preparedness of the nation involving extensive expenditures for the national defense in every direction.

An impending national election with the Democratic administration seeking to complete its record of achievements before next November and a crop of budding presidential aspirants among the Democratic members of the Congressional personnel, particularly in the Senate.

A threatened crisis in the financial affairs of the government with a depleted treasury demanding increased revenues for normal expenditures as well as to meet the appropriations for defense.

The extent and importance of these problems make it practically certain Congress will be at work through the greater part of next Summer and probably up to the November election.

The House is made up of 229 Democrats and 197 Republicans, six Progressives, one Socialist and one Independent, with one seat vacant. This gives the Democrats the scant margin of twenty-four votes over the entire minority. In the Senate the Democrats have fifty-six members and the Republicans forty. In the minority in both chambers are a number of experienced members of the old Republican minority.

NINE NEW SENATORS.

The Senate was convened with Vice-President Marshall absent owing to the illness of Mrs. Marshall. It was called to order by Secretary Baker and the first business was the inauguration of newly elected members, followed immediately by the election of the president pro tempore.

Nine new Senators were escorted to the desk of Vice-President Marshall to take the oath. They included six Democrats and three Republicans, a gain of three for the Democrats and a similar loss for the Republicans. The Democrats were Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, former majority leader of the House, whose qualities of leadership are counted upon to aid materially the Democratic plans in the strenuous days to come; James D. Phelan of California; J. C. W. Beckham of Kentucky; Robert F. Broussard of Louisiana, who has been on the outs with the administration ever since the Underwood tariff bill chopped away the sugar tariff; E. S. Johnson of South Dakota and Paul O. Husing of Wisconsin.

The new Republicans were James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, Warren G. Harding of Ohio and former Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Bulls Are Strong as Wheat Market Opens

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The bulls had the upper hand at the opening of the wheat market today and amid turbulent scenes bid up prices at the opening 1@2c over Saturday's final figures. December wheat opened on a range from 116 to 118, against Saturday's close of 116⅝, May ranged from 118⅜ to 118½, compared to the previous close of 118⅛, shorts who were trying to cover bid wildly for every bushel of wheat.

Rush of Cattle and Hogs Lowers Prices of Meat

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—A great rush of hogs and cattle, bigger in volume than on any other day for the last five years, arrived here today. Twenty-eight hundred carloads were received—75,000 hogs and 34,000 cattle. The congestion resulted in a delay of the opening of the market and prices were 10c lower for hogs and 10c to 25c down for cattle.

Damage to the corn crop in the West and opening of much territory quarantined, because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease, were the causes of the heavy receipts.

Farmers from Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin all told of shortages in corn and feed crops, which made it almost impossible for them to get feed for their live stock.

Traders have declared that the stock showed the effect of bad crop conditions and that most of the hogs were greatly underweight.

Harvard-Radcliffe Singers in 'Orpheus'

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral society will combine for the presentation in January of Gluck's famous opera, "Orpheus." The production will be at the Agassis House Theatre on January 17 and 18, and not at Sanders Theatre, as originally planned. Dr. A. T. Davidson, Harvard's choirmaster, and Mrs. Marie Gulleloa will produce the opera, and Miss Virginia Tanner will have charge of coaching the dancing scenes, as well as assisting in the staging.

The Radcliffe girls in the cast will have roles in the opera are Amy Brown and Phyllis Robbins, both of Cambridge, and Sibyl Bingham of Boston.

Six Feet Five at 14 and Still Growing

MOULTRIE, Ga., Dec. 6.—Doctors are puzzled and parents worried over the phenomenal growth of Harry Connelly, the fourteen-year-old son of a Colquitt county farmer who has been on the outs with the administration ever since the Underwood tariff bill chopped away the sugar tariff: E. S. Johnson of South Dakota and Paul O. Husing of Wisconsin.

The new Republicans were James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, Warren G. Harding of Ohio and former Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Publicity Fails to Make Americans Pay

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The plan of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to shame Americans given money by the government to get them out of the war zone into paying back the funds by publishing their names has proved a failure. The list of delinquents containing about 1,400 names was made public on November 1. During November $8,823 was repaid and approximately $250,000 of the money advanced to the Americans abroad still is outstanding.

MRS. GALT WILL RUSH WEDDING PREPARATION

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The same turquoise bracelet worn by other brides of this administration, Mrs. Frances Bowen Sayre and Mrs. William McAdoo, will adorn the arm of Mrs. Norman Galt when she marries President Wilson on December 18. It is the property of Miss Margaret Wilson.

It will be the "something blue" necessary to carry out the old bridal superstition. The something old will be a piece of rare old rose point from the famous Bolling lace collections.

Mrs. Galt's friends insist now that the wedding gown will be a demi-toilette and not a tailored suit. This, of course, will be the "something new."

In the trousseau are six costumes of the afternoon gown variety, any one of which would be suitable as an afternoon wedding costume. One is of heavy cream colored satin embroidered in silver and trimmed with sable fur.

Rumors persist that this, with a wide picture hat, will be trimmed with bronze lace, will be the wedding gown. Two other gowns are in shades of orchid, one of satin and brocade and the other of velvet and crepe. Hats to match are parts of these costumes.

HAS MANY GOWNS.

A tailored suit, not previously described, is of sapphire blue chiffon velvet in three-piece style. The skirt and bodice are all in one and are fashioned of the velvet combined with georgette crepe and bronze thread lace.

The skirt is cut in full round style without plaits or draperies but has a wide band of sable about the bottom. The bodice is formed of surplice folds of velvet and bronze lace and has georgette crepe sleeves with flaring bronze lace cuffs. Narrow bands of sable outline the surplice and sleeves.

Another costume is of black Gallic with tiny flowers worked out in various colored metal threads. This has silk cuffs on the sleeves and touches of the silver tulle on the bodice.

Still another is of amethyst velvet trimmed with fox. The coat is long and has a wide band of fox about the hem and wide collar and cuffs of the same fur. A sleeveless jacket, worn over a pleated chiffon waist forms the bodice.

GALT HOME READY.

Other new gowns in the trousseau are a boudoir costume of pleated pink chiffon and tulle, another of pale blue satin embroidered, a brown corduroy walking suit, a riding habit of Bolling green broadcloth and a white broadcloth suit, to be worn with a black velvet hat.

The Galt home in Twentieth street has been done over and open order for the festivities incident to the wedding and for the ceremony itself. The floral piece of the bridal party will be on an elaborate order and is being worked out by the experts of the White House conservatories.

FIRE FOLLOWS BOMB THREAT IN WEST END

An investigation was started today to determine the origin of the mysterious fire which imperilled the lives of several persons in the tenement house at No. 6 Ashland street, West End, following anonymous threats that the building would be destroyed by a bomb on either December 5 or 5.

The blaze, which started in the bathroom of an unoccupied tenement, in the rear of the tailor shop of R. Asoor on the first floor, drove three families to the street and created considerable excitement in the neighborhood.

It was discovered by Special Officers Fay and Campbell of the Joy street station, who had been detailed to guard the building following the receipt of anonymous letters. They noticed the smoke pouring from the roof.

Fearing that the bomb plot had been carried out, they rushed into the building after telephoning to the Fire Department. The smoke was very dense in the hallway and the officers had considerable difficulty in finding their way.

All the occupants were panic-stricken. Four little children of Reuben Cohen were trapped on the fourth floor by the thick smoke. Fay and Campbell carried them to the street in safety. They also assisted the families of Morris Bernstein and S. Weinburg.

After the blaze had been extinguished, acting District Chief Hines stated that he had carefully examined the premises but could find no evidences of incendiarism. No inflammable material was found in the apartment where the fire originated.

Shortly before the discovery of the fire, the newspaper offices were informed over the telephone that it was planned to destroy the building with a bomb. The informer stated that he was "Mr. Goldberg."

Rushing Help to Liner Minnesota

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 6.—The great Northern freighter Minnesota, the biggest steamship on the Pacific Ocean, was still wallowing helplessly 20 miles southwest of Coronado Islands today, while the wrecking tugs Iqua and Dauntless and the U. S. revenue cutter McCulloch were rushing to her assistance. Fragmentary reports from Captain Garlich indicate three men, one of whom is believed to be a German naval reservist, in the Minnesota's brig are charged with disabling the ship's engines. The Minnesota left Seattle November 16 for London.

Wife-Beater Given Two Months in Jail

In South Boston Court today William Burke was sentenced to the House of Correction for two months for assault and battery on his wife. Burke was first arrested for drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and his case placed on file. As he was leaving the court room he was arrested on the other charge. His wife took the stand against him. Her face showed a mass of cuts and bruises.

GIRL SWIMMER LANDS "MASHER" BEFORE A JUDGE

Miss Cecelia Friedberg, Dorchester girl, on whose testimony George H. Bresnahan was today sentenced to six months on masher charges.

George H. Bresnahan of Somerville was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court today on "masher" charges preferred by Miss Cecelia Friedberg, seventeen, of No. 28 Irma street, Dorchester. He appealed and was held in $500 bonds.

On the stand in court today Miss Friedberg told the following story:

"I was standing on Tremont street, near Bromfield, Saturday night, waiting for my father, who had gone into a drug store. While I was standing there three young men approached me. One of them was dressed in the uniform of a marine.

"Bresnahan was among them. He was the most prominent of the three. He said to me: 'Oh, you kid,' at the same time laying his hands upon me. He then pushed me. I tried to get away from the three men, but I was unable to do so as hte had me surrounded.

"At this point my father approached and told the men who he was, but at first they threatened to assault him. He then called a policeman and the three men ran, pursued by the officer who arrested Bresnahan.

"He attempted o fix things with my father, as he said he would lose his position if he were obliged to appear in court. I was anxious however, that the matter be settled in court as I do not believe that any man has the right to accost a young girl when she is on a public street without an escort.

"This is the first time that I have ever been troubled by anybody while I have been unattended on a public street."

The specific charge against Bresnahor was assault.

Miss Friedberg as an amateur swimmer has made a fine record in Boston waters. Among her latest successes were swims from Nahant to Revere, from Revere to the Graves, and from Revere to Nahant and the Graves. She also accomplished a six-mile swim in the Penobscot river from Bangor to Riverside. She has twice attempted the Boston Light swim. She is also a skater and has taken part in many races.

Charles McCarthy of Chelsea Buried

The funeral of Charles McCarthy, sixty years a resident of Chelsea and who when a boy was a chum of O'Donovan Rossa, Irish patriot, took place today at the home of his son, Dr. P. H. McCarthy, No. 115 Washington avenue, Chelsea. Eight grandsons were pallbearers. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Rose's Church. Burial was at Holy Cross.

Poet d'Annunzio Challenges to Duel

By International News Service.

ROME, Dec. 6.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, the noted Italian poet, has challenged Deputy Mazzoni Graziadei to fight a duel.

The challenge is based on alleged insulting remarks said to have reflected on the honor of the poet, and to have been made in Parliament on Saturday.

STATE MAY CALL SIXTY IN THE MOHR CASE

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 6.—The trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Blair Mohr and three negro employes for the alleged murder of Mr. Mohr's husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, a wealthy practitioner of this city and Newport, on the night of August 31, promises to be the most absorbing ever held in Rhode Island.

Preparations are nearly completed by Attorney-General Herbert A. Rice and his assistants have arranged to summon sixty or more witnesses. The State prosecutor said today that he may try the quartet on December 13 instead of on December 28, or try the four jointly on the latter date.

Attorney Arthur Cushing, counsel for Mrs. Mohr, insists on a separate trial for her. Attorney-General Rice seems more inclined to try the defendants jointly and save time and expense. This matter is still open, but that the trials, whether separate or joint, will get under way before the New Year is now assured. The stage is ready.

INTEREST IS KEEN.

As the time approaches interest in this city and Newport, where Dr. Mohr's clientele embraced the wealthiest women of the fashionable Summer colony, becomes keen. No little concern is felt by the patients among the better set.

Their names are reported to be listed in the little "Red Registered" seized by the police from the doctor's office and disclosures are dreaded. Dr. Mohr's patients were women and girls exclusively. He was credited with knowing secrets in many prominent households.

The trial will be held in the Providence County Superior Court on Benefit street. It is too early definitely to tell what Judge will preside. Judge Rathbun has heard all the preliminary motions and is to hear others next Saturday.

PLAN TO ARGUE MOTION.

Counsel for two of the negroes, Brown and Spellman, will argue a motion on Saturday for a bill of particulars, demanding that the State specify the person who fired the revolver that killed Dr. Mohr and the precise time and place of the shooting.

The authorities claim Cecil Victor Brown has already confessed to the police that he shot Dr. Mohr and that his cousin, Henry Spellman, admitted shooting Miss Emily G. Burger, the former secretary of Dr. Mohr, who was in the automobile with him when he was slain from ambush on the Nayatt road, seven miles from this city.

But Brown and Spellman have since denied these alleged third-degree confessions. George W. Healis, driver of the death car and the third of the accused negroes, has turned State's evidence.

A detailed statement made by him was submitted to the Grand Jury in September, resulting in first-degree indictments against the young widow of the murdered physician and the three colored men.

HAVE CONFESSION.

Chauffeur Healis told a dramatic story. It forms one of the most damning links in the government's case. He is reported by the officials to have admitted that he had been interviewed with Mrs. Mohr many times in arranging the alleged murder plot. He said some of these conferences were held at her lodgings while her two minor children were present.

Healis further averred that Mrs. Mohr instructed Brown to be sure to "get" Dr. Mohr and Miss Burger. He declared that Brown and Spellman were to conceal themselves in the brush beside a lonely stretch in the road, just before the Country Club was reached, and that Healis was to stop the automobile at the point on the pretext of engine trouble.

Healis is alleged to have confessed that the murder was planned for the night of August 25, but the fact that he had Miss Ormsby and Martha Wilson, the housekeeper of the Newport villa, in the car, caused him to drive at top speed past the spot where, he claimed, he knew Brown and Spellman were crouched with cocked pistols

CONFER IN SECRET.

Next day there was another secret conference with Mrs. Mohr, according to Healis' confession, and she rebuked them for not carrying out the plan as agreed and cautioned them to be sure the next time.

Three nights later, on August 31, Healis claimed he stopped the lowslung touring car as agreed, crouched behind the uplifted hood in front, and Brown and Spellman come up from behind, each select his victim and fire.

He and Brown, under the latter's earlier alleged confession, said Mrs. Mohr had promised to pay them a substantial sum for the murder, but that no money had passed.

After Healis made this confession at the office of Attorney-General Rice, while the Grand Jury was in session, Brown and Spellman were incensed. They refused to have anything to do with him at the State Prison in Cranston, where all three are confined, pending trial.

They are working in the shirt room. It is reported on good authority that the State expects Spellman to join Healis as a State witness, but that there is no danger of Brown weakening. In fact, if inner inklings can be relied upon, the prosecution seems most anxious to fasten responsibility for the murder conspiracy upon Mrs. Mohr and Brown.

PUT OFF NEW BEDFORD VOTE DECISIONS

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 6.—Frank H. Swift and Charles W. Sullivan were arraigned in court today on a charge of attempting to "book" one vote each in connection with the New Bedford municipal campaign. At the request of the prosecution, Judge Milliken continued the cases until next Monday and held each of the defendants in $500. Sullivan is colored.

The hearing of Alfred Bird, a liquor dealer, charged with "booking" the vote of Alexander Pothier, was resumed today, following an all day session on Saturday. T. F. O'Brien, counsel for Bird, declared that the case against his client was a "frame up for political purposes solely." Attorney E. B. Jourdaine made the closing argument for the prosecution. Judge Milliken announced he would not make a decision in the case until December 13.

On Saturday Bird testified that Pothier had told him "it would be worth $7" to Pothier to be booked as a voter for Mayor Hathaway, who is up for re-election. Bird declared he told Pothier "there was nothing doing." Besides Pothier, the prosecution had the testimony of two of W. J. Burns' detectives.

The election takes place tomorrow.

Boy Who Shot at Women Is Sent to Shirley School

CLINTON, Dec. 6.—Francis Neary, seventeen, former Lyman School charge, was today sentenced to the Shirley Industrial School for Boys on a charge of shooting Mrs. Myron S. Wheeler and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Elias Wheeler.

Neary was an employe of the Wheeler farm in Berlin and on December 1 attacked the two women with a shotgun and fired at them as they fled. He had committed a boyish prank and Mrs. Wheeler had threatened exposure to her husband.

At the request of the Lyman School authorities the charge of shooting with intent to kill, under which he had first been arraigned, was changed to a charge of assault.

Clouds Hide New Comet from Harvard

An attempt was made last night at Harvard to photograph the new comet which was dis overed by Astronomer Taylor at the Cape of Good Hope. Persistent cloudiness prevented the photographing and it is the intention to try again tonight if conditions are favorable.

The comet was first sighted near Delta Orionis, the left hand star in the belt of Orion. Later Sir Frank Dyson, astronomer royal at Greenwich, reported it was slowly moving north. Further details could not be given "owing to the censor," the cablegram announcing the discovery declared.

Prisoner Guarded from Maine Threat

LEWISTON, Dec. 6.—John Keith was in the Police Court today charged with attacking three-year-old Gladys Pelletier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pelletier. He was held without bail. On an order from the Judge the police cleared the courtroom and corridors, as there had been threats of lynching Keith. Keith, the police find, was sentenced from Worcester on the same charge several years ago, to six years in the Massachusetts State Prison.

M'ADOO TO ASK FOR BILLION AND A QUARTER

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Uncle Sam will need more than a billion and a quarter dollars to cover the expenditures he expects to make in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, according to estimates submitted to Congress today by Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department. The estimates call for a total of $1,258,357,998.16. This includes, however, some $375,000,000 that is postal expenditures, payable out of the postal service revenues, and the requirement for the public debt sinking fund.

The figures leave a net expenditure of $908,765,929.16, as against a net expenditure of $740,934,247.35 during the current year, an increase of $167,831,681.81.

Practically every department of the government shows a substantial increase in its demands for funds for the coming year. The War Department asks for an increase of $78,000,000 and the Navy Department for an increase of $69,000,000, most of which is to go into the beginning of the administration preparedness program and details of which already have been made public.

The State Department wants nearly $2,000,000 more than it is spending this year, to take care of the added expenditures in the diplomatic and consular service incident to the European war. The War Department asks for $242,612,945, the Navy for $220,477,611 and the State Department for $6,125,292.

The Department of Commerce asks for $156,436,238, an increase of more than $4,000,000 over its current funds. A large part of the increase is to be devoted to the expansion of American trade abroad.

The Treasury Department, the Interior Department and the Department of Agriculture each asks for about $1,000,000 more than they were given this year, and the estimates for the District of Columbia call for expenditures of about $3,000,000 more than the current appropriations.

PLANS PERFECTED FOR BASKET FUND BALL

Great Festival of Christmas Is Drawing Near; Let All Help Happiness Campaign.

Christmas Day is drawing nearer. Only three weeks away now and the Christmas Basket Editor's mail is growing. The appeals for Christmas Baskets will be many. The Christmas Basket fund is growing by the generous response of people, both young and old, from all parts of New England, but still the campaign of Happiness, if waged to the successful end, needs much more money.

The children are daily sending in their contributions and this is a great help to the campaign.

One boy, who only uses his initials, G. R. H., sends in twenty-five cents as his share. With this contribution comes the following letter:

Christmas Editor:

Enclosed please find twenty-five cents. It is money that I have saved from pennies given me. I hope some other little boy will be made happy on Christmas Day by this small contribution.

G. R. H.

The Christmas Basket Editor can assure this little boy, whoever he is, that the Christmas Day of someone WILL be happier by his giving this quarter as his share, and thanks him for his ready response to the appeal for funds.

SOLDIER'S APPEAL.

Last Christmas Day dinners were sent into 7,000 Boston homes, and over 25,000 people celebrated Christmas by the efforts of those who so generously contributed to the Christmas Basket fund.

This Christmas probably just about as many homes will need the spirit of Christmas happiness if they are to enjoy the Yuletide spirit at all. To carry on this work needs money and the time is growing shorter each day. Give now to this Christmas Basket fund.

An appeal for a Christmas dinner comes from a soldier without kin or friends. Here is his letter:

Dear Editor:

I am forty-three years old and a veteran of the Civil War. I am dependent upon the charity of others. I have no relatives or kin living. A Christmas basket would be appreciated on Christmas Day.

This letter is only typical of the many that have come in the Christmas Basket Editor's mail each day.

Many letters have come endorsing the campaign from those who have contributed. Herbert Parker, former Attorney-General, in sending his subscription gave the following sentiment:

It is with pleasure that I enclose check for your Christmas Basket fund in order that some of our more unfortunate citizens may feel the Christmas spirit.

A Brookline woman who signs herself A. N. L. sent the following letter with her subscription:

Find enclosed check for your good cause. I only wish it could have been more.

Tonight comes one of the big events for the benefit of the Christmas Basket fund. It is a Dansant at the Hotel Georgian, arranged by theatrical folk, now playing in town, and you all know what that means. It means as much happiness and pleasure as you can crowd into one evening.

It will be a novel affair in the way of the popular Dansants and it will be a mistake to miss it. Tonight is the night and the Hotel Georgian is the place.

PERFECT BALL PLANS.

With the announcement of December 20 as the date of the big Christmas ball for the benefit of the Basket fund, Mayor Curley and the members of the Tammany Club, who have the affair in charge, are actively engaged in perfecting the plans for a ball that will be one of the most notable events held in this city in a long while.

Symphony Hall has been selected as the place where the ball will be held and the affair will be graced by many notables in the State and city's activities.

Mayor Curley, who is giving generously of his time and effort in assisting the committee in charge of this affair, in making the announcement of the date, said:

We feel that we have a right to ask people to help out with a thing like this. Everyone can do something for a cause so worthy. I know, and most sensible men and women realize, that there are literally hundreds of homes in Boston where, unless outside help is given, Christmas will be a gloomy day.

EVERYONE SHOULD HELP.

Everyone should help make the Christmas Basket fund grow, in order that no little child or grown person may go hungry on Christmas Day.

Other events that will give the people of the city a chance to help this fund will be a subscription dance at the Copley-Plaza Hotel December 17, and the great theatrical benefit which takes place at the Colonial Theatre on Tuesday, December 21.

It gives the Christmas Basket Editor pleasure to announce these events, for he knows that great assistance is coming to the campaign. There are still other ways of helping out this fund and one of the principal ones is to give NOW, if it be a very small contribution. Every cent that comes to this fund means happiness and Christmas cheer to some home on December 25. That ought to be a strong enough argument to make everyone contribute.

Prizes for Stables.

The Boston Work-Horse Relief Association has just issued its annual circular inviting entries for stable inspection. The inspectors' reports are made confidentially to the proprietor. The prizes are awarded to owners, foremen of stablemen, at the time of the parade.

CROWN PRINCE ALIVE; 'KILLED' MANY TIMES

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Dec. 6 (via Sayville).—Under the caption "Hard to Kill," the semi-official Trans-Ocean News Bureau has issued the following:

"A Danish paper has compiled a biography of the German Crown Prince, covering the early months of the war as reported by Germany's enemies. It follows:

"August 3—Victim of an attempt against his life in Berlin.

"August 15—Severely wounded on the French frontier.

"August 20—Lost a leg in second attempt on his life.

"August 24—Third attempt on his life.

"September 4—Committed suicide.

"September 13—Died in a Brussels hospital.

"September 15—Commanded an attack near Verdun.

"September 16—Wounded by shrapnel in Poland.

"September 18—Again wounded on the French front.

"September 29—Hurried to death bed of wife.

"October 24—Buried in Berlin.

"October 25—Body found on battlefield.

"November 3—Again buried.

"November 4—Once more killed by French.

"November 8—Became insane and was sent to be confined in a lonely castle.

"November 13—Appointed chief in command on eastern front.

"November 17—Killed once more by Poles.

"January 16—Again wounded.

"February 3—Sent home."

N. B.—The Crown Prince is still alive and fighting—"somewhere in France."

Smuts Ready to Attack Germans

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 6.—General Smuts, Minister of Defence in the Union of South Africa, announces that the entire force requested for the East African expedition, has been recruited, and that he hopes the government has been informed that the Union is incurring of its forces to provide for contingencies.

CZAR HAS PLAN FOR SAVING SERBIA

By International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—"Russia already has a plan to save Serbia," declared the Czar by telegraph to Premier Pasitch of Serbia today.

"In no case," continued the Czar, "will Russia tolerate the disappearance of Serbia's independence."

All of the Serbian troops that escaped capture or death are now operating on Albanian or Montenegrin soil. A Bulgarian army is reported to have invaded Albania, southwest of Prizend in pursuit of the desing Serbs.

In the extreme southern part of Serbia, despite the severity of the weather, the Bulgarian assaults against the Anglo-French forces have become much fiercer.

The Athens correspondent of the Evening Standard reports that the landing of reinforcements of French and British troops is proceeding at Salonica with the utmost dispatch. "This fact is received as a reply to the demand voiced by London papers this morning that the allies send at least half a million men into the Balkans.

Bulgaria is reported to be sending large forces of men to the Thracian front, the 11th German division to Rustchuk on the Danube, on the northeastern part of Bulgaria, to oppose any attempt of the Russians to invade King Ferdinand's country by way of the Danube.

Italy will delay sending troops into the Balkans to aid Serbia until it is seen how Rumania is going to do. Announcement to this effect was made today at Rome.

There was an important meeting of the Italian cabinet, dispatches say, at which Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, communicated to his colleagues the viewpoint of the allies as to the Balkan situation.

The whole military and political situation was canvassed, especially the future possibilities of Greece and Rumania.

It was maintained that the recent conversations between Premier Skouloudis and other leaders of the party of the allies have put a much more favorable aspect on the political situation in the Balkans.

Text of Pledge by 5 Allies on Peace Action

By International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The official press bureau gives out the following statement for the Foreign Office:

"The Italian government having decided to accede to the declaration between the British, French and Russian governments, signed in London on September 5, 1914, which declaration was acceded to by the Japanese government on October 19, 1915, the undersigned, duly authorized by their respective governments, declare as follows:

"The British, French, Italian, Japanese and Russian governments mutually engage not to conclude peace separately during the present war.

"The five governments agree that when the terms of peace come to be discussed no one of the allies will demand conditions of peace without previous agreement with each of the other allies.

"Done at London, Nov. 30, 1915.

"E. GREY.
"PAUL CAMBON
"IMPERIAL I.
"K. ISQUYE.
"BENCKENDORFF."

The signatories are the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and in succession the Ambassadors in London from France, Italy, Japan and Russia.

Bagdad Campaign Fails, Says Turks

By International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 6.—The Mesopotamia campaign of the British has ended in failure, according to the Turkish War Office.

No further fears for the safety of Bagdad are felt, although British reinforcements are on the way to the Tigris valley.

"Late advices from the Irak front emphasize the importance of the Turkish victory between Ctesiphon and Kut-el-Amara," says an official report. "The Mesopotamia campaign of the British has ended in failure. Bagdad is regarded as completely safe. The British are still falling back, having suffered terrific losses."

FEAST OF LIGHTS CELEBRATED BY JEWS

A plea for a deeper and more abiding faith and for the kind of practical religious enthusiasm that accomplishes results, was voiced in many synagogues to thousands of Jews gathered to celebrate "The Feast of the Lights."

Most impressive services were held in the vestry of the Temple Israel, Commonwealth avenue. Rabbi Harry Levi, speaking on "The Awakening," declared that the war has served to unify the Jews of the world as never before.

"Spiritually," he said, "the Jew is better off today than in generations. The war now raging in Europe takes faith and gives faith to thousands. The people are beginning to realize that religion is vital. If they had more religion in Europe there would be no war today.

"Israel is a cosmopolitan and international people. In every one of the belligerent lands the Jew not only fights as citizen but as a Jew. Worldwide Israel is awakening. The Jews in France, Russia and England are now working to get ready, when the war is over, to ask for the emancipation of the Jews in the countries where they do not receive equal and political rights."

At the Temple Ohabei Shalom, Union Park street, the celebration was under the auspices of the children of the religious school. A song service was rendered and the Chanukah lights were lighted by the children, with recitations. There was also a sketch, "Judah Maccabee," by Rabbi H. Richler was in charge of the exercises.

The annual Chanukah entertainment of the religious school of the Temple Mishkan Tefila, Copeland and Moreland streets, Roxbury, was held in the afternoon.

A PEARL STREET MAN CLAIMS IS CURED

Clarence Romeo, an Employe of the Boston School Department, Praises Plant Juice.

The term stomach trouble is descriptive of symptoms which indicate very serious conditions. The stomach is the keystone of the human system. Hardly any of the functions of the body fill unless it is directly traceable to the stomach. No matter how slight these pains may be, they mean that something is wrong and should not be treated lightly. Thousands of people suffer from the various symptoms of stomach trouble brought on probably by overwork, protracted hours of study, the fret and worry of business, financial concerns, disappointments, irregular hours or dissipation. All pursuits and callings furnish their share to the army of those afflicted with stomach, liver, kidney troubles and rheumatism. Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic, is proving the most successful remedy of the age for those this so common to city life—stomach trouble and its various symptoms. Daily signed testimonials are pouring in from local people substantiating this statement. One of the most recent is that of Mr. Clarence Romeo, who resides at No. 53 Pearl Street, an employe of the School Department, who said:

CLARENCE ROMEO.

"For years I have had trouble with my stomach in the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. My food fermented in my stomach and caused gas and a heavy, bloated condition; I had no appetite, was restless and nervous and could not sleep at night, had dizzy spells, headaches, liver was sluggish and torpid, was constipated all the time. After taking three bottles I can truthfully say I am a well man. Plant Juice has certainly cured me all right, as my stomach is in fine condition, can eat any kind of food without distress, sleep well, have no more trouble with my liver and my nerves are in fine condition. Plant Juice did the work for me."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES FOR BABY DEE

Baby William Dee of Worcester won his case in the Massachusetts Supreme Court today.

Not only did Baby Dee win, but his victory was the occasion of an important ruling by the court on what constitutes a violation of the "neglected child" statute. The decision is all important to poor parents who up to this time have faced the removal of their children by town, city or State authorities because of their poverty.

The Supreme Court now rules that it is NOT the purpose of the statute to remove children from parents who are "merely poor."

Four years ago Baby Dee was found guilty in the Worcester District Court of being a neglected child. His mother is Mrs. Mary Dee, a widow. She had another child, younger than Baby William.

The mother sought for work, then applied to the Worcester Overseers of the Poor and was sent to the poor farm with the two children. After being there four months, Mrs. Dee found work and took her younger child with her. But Baby William remained at the poor farm.

The Worcester overseers shortly after ruled that "by reason of the neglect of its mother" the baby had become a public charge, and later the district court so found and Baby Dee was turned over to the State Board of Charities.

This board, acting in behalf of the lad, appealed the case to the Superior Court. Chief Justice Aiken heard the case, decided the child was not a neglected child, nor a pauper child, and reported the case to the Supreme Court for a decision.

This court today handed down its decision, which was written by Judge DeCourcy. He says:

"The purpose of the statute strongly insinuates that it was to provide for the removal of children from those parents who are undesirable and unfit, and not from parents who are merely poor.

"Mere dependence on public charity does not bring a child within the operation of the neglect law, and indigent victims of poverty are often a grave injustice by being taken into court with its stigma of criminality.

"In order to bring the child in question within the scope of the neglect statute, it must be shown that such dependency was caused by the neglect, crime, cruelty, insanity or drunkenness, or other vices of its parents, as provided in 'the statute.'"

Japanese Steamship Escapes Submarine

By International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The following account of an attack against the merchant ship Japanese Prince by a German submarine was received today through the government press bureau:

"The steamship Japanese Prince, with a large crew and considerable number of passengers, recently encountered a German submarine. After a struggle of five-and one-half hours she succeeded in getting clear, but was heavily shelled during the greater part of that time. The captain pluckily stood by his post and as a result of hearty co-operation, the merchant crew was able to elude the submarine finally and make her way into port. All on board were safe."

Austria Refuses to Aid Drive on Egypt

ROME, Dec. 6.—It is learned that Emperor Francis Joseph has refused to send Austrian troops to aid the Germans and Turks in the proposed expedition against Egypt. The Emperor contends that all available Austrian forces are needed to defend Austria's western frontiers against Italy.

"U. S. SHIPS NOW SAFE ONLY IN INLAND WATERS"

Britain's Arbitrary Acts on High Seas Reviewed by Wilson's Former Adviser.

William Bayard Hale was the first of President Wilson's representatives in Mexico; in that capacity he understood to have recommended a policy more vigorous than the Administration was willing to adopt. Since the beginning of the war Mr. Hale has devoted his time to the study of international maritime law.

By WILLIAM BAYARD HALE,
Author of "American Rights and British Pretensions on the Seas."

Up to the present moment of writing it is believed such American vessels as are navigating the Great Lakes, the Mississippi River and the Hudson River are safe from capture or detention at the hands of British cruisers. The Long Island Sound lines also are running without interruption. Beyond this statement we have no certain assurance.

Between New York and Norfolk, Va., the voyage is dangerous. Within a few weeks at least two ships on that voyage have been chased by British men-of-war. The Vinland is not indeed an American, being of Danish registry. With a cargo out of New York, November 17, for Norfolk, she escaped by creeping, closely pursued, through the fog, inside the three-mile zone down the Jersey Coast.

The Hocking was not so fortunate. The Hocking is an American vessel, flying the American flag, owned by Americans, and was steaming between two American ports. She had, and could have had, no contraband on board, for nothing can be contraband passing between two ports of a neutral country.

CASE OF THE HOCKING.

But, as a matter of fact, she was in ballast, without a pound of cargo in her. A British cruiser caught her on her way out of New York Harbor, boarded her within sight of the Jersey shore, put her in charge of an armed prize crew, hauling down the American flag and running up the British Jack, and took her, a prize, into Halifax, where she was put in charge of the marshal of the Prize Court.

American ships voyaging to the Caribbean are likely (as was the Zealandia at Progress on November 5) to be boarded by a British boarding crew within the shelter of a Mexican port. American ships bound for South America are likely to be captured, as was the Genesee out of Norfolk, October 14, as prize, by a cruiser of the British West Indian port, St. Lucia.

The rights of American vessels or of American cargoes on vessels of other neutral nations, on the other hand, on the Atlantic being what they are—namely, none existent, abandoned (for not a ship crosses the Atlantic to and from our ports without license of the British Admiralty), it may perhaps be worth while to inquire whether we have any privileges left us along our own coasts.

VESSEL PASSED TEST.

The case of the Hocking, the Genesee and the Kankakee are dramatically illustrative of the attitude of the British government toward our shipping.

Once the Hocking was a Dutch ship. Then her name was the Amerland. In course of time she passed under Danish registry and was known as the Greenland. On October 22, 1915, she became a registered American ship, having passed into the ownership of the American Transatlantic Steamship Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, and with its chief office at No. 17 Battery place, New York City.

There was some hesitation on the part of the Washington authorities in according the Hocking registration as an American ship. In fact, protest against this action was made by representatives of the British government, and three months were expended in an exhaustive investigation of the American Transatlantic Steamship Company, the character of its stockholders, the nationality of its officers and the good faith of the transfer of the vessel. It is alleged to be the ambition of the present administration at Washington to build up an American merchant marine.

TRANSFER IN GOOD FAITH.

The Hocking was not indeed a gigantic addition to our shipping list, but the good faith of her transfer was so apparent, the honorable commercial ambition which made her one of a growing fleet of American ships was so clear that, in spite of British opposition, she was, on the date above mentioned, impressed with the character of an American ship and given the right to fly the American flag and enjoy whatever protection that emblem affords.

When that protection amounted to was soon manifest. A week and a day after she had acquired American nationality the Hocking fell the prey of one of the British cruisers which blockade the entrance to New York harbor and was carried as a prize to Halifax.

There must, of course, have been, and there was a ground upon which Great Britain interfered with this modest attempt of American enterprise to take care of its own shipping interests. It could not, of course, be alleged that the Hocking was an enemy ship, transferred to American registry for the purpose of escaping the embarrassment of, say, German ownership.

NEVER AN ENEMY SHIP.

Something over a year ago there was a good deal of talk about building up an American merchant marine. Under existing circumstances such a marine could be built up only by purchases of foreign ships, and during a couple of months there were heard in the neighborhood of Washington many large words about the right of a nation to provide for its necessities.

A ship purchase bill was introduced into Congress calling for the organization by the steamship company, part of whose capital was to be contributed by the government in order to secure available ships to carry our commerce. The Declaration of London, the most authoritative statement of international maritime law, expressly provides for the "transfer of an enemy vessel to a neutral flag after the outbreak of hostilities."

International law fully acknowledges the validity of such transfer made in good faith. But there was no such question in the case of the transfer of the Hocking. The Hocking had never been an "enemy" vessel. She was purchased by an American company from a Dane—purchased by one neutral from another neutral.

No belligerent has a right on any ground to object to the transfer to American registry of any neutral ship. It was, however, alleged the American Transatlantic Steamship Company was backed by money furnished by gentlemen whose nationality is offensive to Britons.

BRITAIN'S CLAIM FAULTY.

Let it be noted that, even if this were the case, it would afford no ground whatever upon which the Hocking might be made a British captive. It is not a crime for Germans to invest their money in an American enterprise. There is no Federal statute, there is probably no enactment in any state in the Union, which forbids the investment of foreign capital of any (moral) denomination in American enterprises.

There is no international law that forbids citizens of one nation from investing in business in another nation. There is nothing harmful to the interests of the United States in having foreign money invested here; the investment of foreign capital in our enterprises is, on the contrary, beneficial.

There is, of course, nothing in the law that prohibits foreign ownership of stock in corporations owning and operating vessels under the American flag. It would be a very poor law if there were. Thibet, Hayti or Siam might deem it good policy to forbid the investment of foreign money in native enterprises; but enlightened policy invites foreign capital, assures it protection—and then fulfils the assurance.

FOREIGN INTEREST DENIED.

The American Transatlantic Company is an American corporation, the members of which declare there is no German capital invested in it. Even if there were, the fact would give Great Britain no right to touch the ships. It is to the advantage of the United States to have German capital as well as British, French or any other kind of capital invested in American business enterprises.

There would be as much justice in Germany confiscating the Pennsylvania Railroad because a large amount of capital invested in that carrying concern is English as there is in Great Britain seizing the Hocking or the Genesee on the ground that German capital is invested in them.

It is a just complaint that the Mexican government does not protect American capital invested in Mexico; is the United States government prepared to sink to the Mexican level by refusing to protect foreign capital invested in legitimate business carried on under the American flag?

The registration statute under which the Hocking took its place as an American vessel was the Act of August 18, 1914. Under this act the American Transatlantic Steamship Company furnished the United States government with a certificate of its organization, and the names of its president and managing directors, all of whom were citizens of the United States.

HIGH-HANDED PROCEEDINGS.

By the capture of the Hocking the British government served notice upon the government of the United States that upon its mere assumption, or its mere allegation, money belonging to persons of a nationality disagreeable to England was invested in a ship, that ship might be made a prize by a British cruiser wherever caught, haled into a British port and thrown into a British prize court.

That was the situation up to a day or two ago. It was desperate enough, in all reason. But it is now become infinitely worse, for the Hocking, after having had nailed upon her mainmast in Halifax harbor an Admiralty notice giving her eight days in which to show cause why she should not be condemned as a "good and lawful prize," has been denied even that mercy.

There is to be no prize court; there is to be no hearing; the Hocking is declared confiscated—presumably under His Majesty's Order in Council of October 29, 1915.

What is that Order in Council of October 29? Article 57 of the Declaration of London provided that the character of a vessel, namely, as to whether it is an enemy vessel or a neutral vessel, is determined by the flag which she is entitled to fly.

ABROGATES ALL RIGHTS.

The Declaration of London, drawn up under the inspiration of the British government, and signed by it February 26, 1909, was, at the beginning of the present war, namely, by an Order in Council of August 20, 1914, re-adopted and put in force by His Majesty's Government. However, on October 29, 1915, at the Court of Buckingham Palace, present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council, it was declared that it was no longer expedient to abide by the said Article 57.

That is to say the British Government sets up a court of the high seas which arrogates to itself the right to go behind the decisions and the determinations of a government like that of the United States and to decide on its own account whether or not the acts of a branch of the United States Government, for instance, are legal or are illegal.

Papers emanating from the government of the United States in Washington have no force or effect with a captain of an English cruiser; the certificate of the department of the Government of the United States is of no consequence to him. The "full faith and credit" between nations upon which all international intercourse and all hope of civilization abides does not exist today for any officer of the British Government.

NO OPPORTUNITY FOR PROOF.

The case is even worse. As it stands today the British Government not only disregards the certificate of registration by a government, like that of the United States to the extent of requiring its possessor to prove before a colony British tribunal his right to possess the certificate, but it goes further; it does not give the possessor of the certificate a chance to prove his right to possess it.

The British government does not only require the owners of a ship like the Hocking to prove that they are entitled to carry the American flag which the American government has given them, but refuses to award them an opportunity to prove that right. Without taking the trouble to go through the form of condemning the Hocking, she was confiscated by the British authorities at Halifax.

The case of the Hocking has a clear parallel in that of the Genesee—another humble vessel lately likewise added to our merchant marine. The Genesee is likewise the property of the American Transatlantic Steamship Company. Like the Hocking she is a recent acquisition of the company. The Genesee was built in England and sailed at a British ship under the name of Ayrfonian. Her British owners sold her to L. N. Cordylis of Athens, Greece. As a Greek ship she was known as the Cordylis. She was then acquired by the Finland Steamship Company of Copenhagen.

The American Transatlantic Steamship Company bought her from the Danish concern in June, 1915, and rechristened her the Genesee. Soon after her acquisition by the American company she was chartered to C. G. Blake & Co. of Cincinnati, and loaded with a cargo of 3,500 tons of coal for Montevideo. She cleared from Norfolk October 15.

SEIZED MASTERS INTIMIDATED.

An American ship, plying between two neutral ports, she was captured in the Caribbean Sea by a British cruiser and carried into the harbor of St. Lucia. There she likewise has been confiscated without the courts proceedings by the British government.

To these two cases is to be added that of the Kankakee, concerning which few particulars have as yet reached the United States. She was a member of the fleet to which the Hocking and the Genesee belonged and was on her way from a United States port to a South American port when off the mouth of the River Plate she was on October 31 captured by the British auxiliary cruiser Macedonia, carried a prize into Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, where orders for her confiscation will probably be sent.

There are seven other vessels in the American Transatlantic fleet which have been blacklisted by the British Admiralty and which will be captured and confiscated as soon as British cruisers are able to get hold of them.

Two of the blacklisted ships, the Manitowoc and the Muskegon, lie at Buenos Ayres, afraid to leave port. Another, the Allaguash, lies at Rio under like intimidation. The Winneconne is in New York harbor awaiting a cargo which nobody dares put on board her. The Axiable is at Galveston in like case. The Manitou is held up at Copenhagen. The Saginaw, in Marseilles harbor, seized by the French.

CONTEMPT OF U. S. NOTE.

Meanwhile goods are accumulating at New York and other American ports to such an extent that railroads decline to carry further consignments to the docks.

And this is the answer to the American note of October 21. It took the United States government seven months to make up its mind to write that note; it has taken the British government one month to deliver its practical answer to it.

The government of Great Britain has virtually set up in the midst of the busy seas an arbitrary court, claiming unheard of powers, and exercising the most tyrannous police functions; seizing and hailing into its courts, as suspects, all travelers upon the ocean highways, and visiting many of them with heavy penalties for unproven, and indeed unprovable, offenses.

Lord of the seas, master of the seas, contemptuous alike of its own precedent and of the rights of others, scarcely stoops to the pretense of citing authority for its actions, which are determined solely by its brutal will, and enforced, though indeed largely through intimidation, by the gigantic power of its naval police.

The extent of the earth's surface over which this extraordinary court is permitted to wield its self-arrogated jurisdiction, the magnitude of the commerce which its actions vitally affect, and the supineness with which arrogated to itself the right to go behind the decisions and the determinations of a government like that of the United States and to decide on its own account whether or not the acts of a branch of the United States Government, for instance, are legal or are illegal.

A contemplation of that spectacle suggests the hour imposes upon the United States a duty of supreme historical importance.

BRYAN FAVORS WILSON PLEA FOR PEACE

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—President Wilson will be called upon to make an immediate effort to bring about peace in Europe, says a statement issued here by former Secretary of State William J. Bryan. An immediate offer of mediation, the former secretary says, is demanded "on the ground of humanity."

The Bryan statement follows the former secretary's trip to New York, where he hads an encouraging "God speed" to the unofficial peace envoys on the way to Europe with Henry Ford. It is coincident with the assembling of Congress and Mr. Bryan expresses the hope that the national legislature will at once assure the President of its support in any efforts he may make toward peace.

Houghton & Dutton Voted Fair to Labor

The Boston Central Labor Union has unanimously voted the Houghton & Dutton Company to be "fair to organized labor." The union took this action following a report from the Cigarmakers' Union that the company had announced it would discontinue the use of certain premium coupons, which the cigarmakers believed was being backed by a non-union concern.

President Broiters of the cigarmakers, in asking the Central Labor body to take the action in favor of the Houghton & Dutton Company, said the cigarmakers had held a special meeting on the matter and that Treasurer Alexander McGregor of the company had informed the members that the firm would discontinue the use of the coupons.

Mr. McGregor declared that the big department store would instal another system of trading stamps which would meet the approval of organized labor as well as those who had patronized the other coupons. Mr. McGregor told the union that the new trading stamp would be one of the most attractive and profitable ever offered to the shoppers of Boston and New England.

BAPTISTS SCORE HOTEL DANCE ORDER

The Boston Baptist preachers' meeting today unanimously adopted resolutions opposing the Boston Licensing Board's order granting permission for dancing in hotels. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, the Ekstee Commission for licensing intoxicating liquor in Boston have this month, December 2, inaugurated a new policy with respect to the conditions under which liquor may be sold to men and women, and proposes to permit dancing in the same room where food and drink is served, and

Whereas such a permission is liable to lead to a recurrence of the old-time dance hall conditions where immorality was rife and moral ruin encouraged.

Therefore, resolved, by the Baptist preachers' meeting of Greater Boston:

First: That we regret the unwisdom of this new policy.

Second: That we record ourselves as strongly opposed to this innovation.

Third: That we send to His Excellency, David I. Walsh and to the Boston Licensing Board, a copy of this resolution.

Approved and adopted by the Boston Baptist Preachers' Meeting—certified correct by

J. H. WOODSON,
Secretary.

G. R. Maguire, pastor of the Ruggles Street Baptist Church, in presenting the resolutions said:

"I had an experience in Boston last Saturday, which I shall not soon forget. I visited seven hotels and restaurants and saw for myself what this new move on the part of the licensing board would mean. No action is more needed in Boston today than to condemn this order of the board in mixing dancing and drink together.

"I appeal to your higher sense of right to protect our young men and young women, who are frequenting these places. This dancing business is but half to get the unwary and such places. I believe the licensing board at this city by its order has done more harm than can be undone in a hundred years. It has succeeded in nothing but in helping the liquor men in improving their business."

GARDNER MOVES FOR 'DEFENCE' INQUIRY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts today introduced a resolution in the House for a searching inquiry into the membership, finances and activities of the Navy League, Labor's National Peace Council, the National Security League and the American Defence Society.

Presenting the resolution, Mr. Gardner said he was getting tired of insinuations that his motives are corrupt, and that he intends to establish, now and for all, whether the National Defence advocates are "a parcel of crooks."

He said he thought the House ought to investigate the activities of public men on both sides of the question, including himself, to see whether, directly or indirectly, they are trying to make money for themselves or for others.

Therefore, resolved, by the Baptist preachers' meeting of Greater Boston:

First: That we regret the unwisdom of this new policy.

Second: That we record ourselves as strongly opposed to this innovation.

Third: That we send to His Excellency, David I. Walsh and to the Boston Licensing Board, a copy of this resolution.

Harvard Hospital Unit in London

The University Press has received a week-end cablegram from Herbert H. White, manager of the Second Harvard Surgical Unit, now in England. The cablegram announced that the members of the unit were met by Colonel Sir Alan Perry, commanding officer of the Twenty-second General Hospital, where the first Harvard unit gave its service at Falmouth on landing. They were met in London by ex-Ambassador Robert Bacon, and were entertained at Oxford University by Sir William Osler, who was the originator of the plan for hospital units from American universities.

The unit will have luncheon with the Harvard Club of London before moving forward to the hospital in France, Wednesday or Thursday of this week. All of the members are well.

The Book Is Better Than the Play. The Play Has Thrilled Thousands

CHAPTER I.
The Murder.

So much that is inaccurate has appeared from time to time in the newspapers all over the country about the Trask murder, and the subsequent trial and acquittal of Robert Strickland, the defendant, that I have felt constrained in justice to all concerned to set matters right; not only by correcting these inaccuracies, but by narrating for the first time in detail some of the circumstances which, for lack of a better word, I may describe as extenuating, which undoubtedly influenced the jury in coming to their decision. If to some people I may seem to have been over-long in making up my mind to adopt this course, I have two explanations to offer for my procrastination: in the first place, I have been, and still am, reluctant to cause any additional suffering to a woman who must have already reached the point beyond which human endurance can hardly be expected to go, by reopening wounds which Time itself can never fully heal; secondly, I am conscious that my chief, if not only, equipment for the task I am about to undertake is that I happen to be in possession of all the facts in the case, many of which—as any lawyer will understand—could not, for purely technical reasons, be brought before a jury.

I may be pardoned, by way of introduction, for saying a few words about myself to explain why and how I happen to be the person upon whose shoulders the responsibility for the performance of these duties seems to rest. My name is Malcolm Arbuckle. For nearly twenty years I have been known as a criminal lawyer, during which period I have met with unusual success—a circumstance which I attribute largely to fortune. Certainly I wish to make no pretensions to the possession of more than average ability, together with perhaps a little more than average persistence, a heritage of my Scottish blood.

In one way only has my career differed that of most prominent confreres at the Bar: I have never asked nor accepted for myself any fee from my clients. The greater part of them, indeed, would have been unable to pay me had I done so. In the rare cases where, out of gratitude for such as I have been able to render them, my clients have insisted upon paying me a fee, the sum has eventually been turned over to some charity upon the worthiness of which I have satisfied myself after careful inquiry. This conduct on my part has frequently been described as eccentric. But to all such criticism I am completely indifferent, and discovering upon attaining my majority that I was the possessor of a fortune giving me an income which one of my simple tastes and habits could never think of spending, I cast about in my mind for the vocation which would at once employ my leisure and afford me an opportunity for helping my fellow-men.

From my earliest youth, all tales of mystery and so-called "detective" stories have interested me more than any other form of light literature. By this confession, I am aware that I lay myself open to the charge of being a person of uncultivated taste, sadly lacking in moral discrimination. In my own defence I might cite two of the most illustrious men of modern times, namely, Prince Bismarck and Mr. Gladstone, both of whom are said to have beguiled their leisure with the romances of Fortune de Boisgobey and Emilie Gaboriau.

Be that as it may, I admit that I find such tales most absorbing. Even the accounts of real crimes, so graphically set forth in our daily papers, interest me more than almost any other form of news. For years, I have made it a practice to follow every criminal trial closely; in especial those which have to do with murder.

The shelves of my library are loaded with scrap-books containing accounts of all the most celebrated murder cases of the past twenty years. The ones which have never been cleared up are naturally the most fascinating. It would doubtless surprise my friends to know that I have in every one of these cases—sometimes only after the lapse of study—been able to arrive at a solution which I am convinced is the true one. For nearly a year, when time shall have removed the actors from the scene of these tragic dramas, I shall offer these conclusions to the world.

It can readily be seen how this natural predisposition on my part determined me in the choice of a career. I decided to fit myself for the practice of the law, and to devote myself to defending those unfortunates accused of crime who were without means to regularly employ counsel for themselves.

And now we come to the Robert Strickland case. Most of my readers will probably recall the sensation caused by the murder of Gerald Trask, and the principal facts connected with that crime as they appeared in the papers. It will, therefore, only be necessary to give a brief summary of the accounts that appeared in the New York papers on the morning of June 25th last.

When my servant, an elderly Scotsman who has been with me for a number of years, came to call me at his accustomed hour of half after seven, it did not need the arm full of papers he was carrying to tell me that they contained news of peculiar interest. One glance at his face would have been sufficient. I may add, parenthetically, that his interest in all matters criminal is second only to my own, and that he follows each case with an interest which is as lively as it is intelligent.

More than once, I am bound to admit, some shrewd comment or observation on his part has been of real assistance when my own brain was temporarily befogged with pondering too long over some knotty problem. I have made it a practice upon numerous occasions to summon him to my study after I have arrived at a tentative conclusion, and have stated my case to him as I might put it before a jury. If he is not perfectly convinced—and he clearly understands that I rely upon him to be absolutely frank—I know that my argument requires strengthening.

He has never in the slightest degree presumed upon these departures from our ordinary relations, appearing in the morning following our most hotly contested debates, with his accustomed air of respectful assistity.

Ordinarily, I read the Times while at my breakfast. But McLean has the instructions to bring a copy of each of the morning papers whenever a new case is reported, as well as to look out for the later additions.

"Something unusual, McLean, to judge from your face," I said, sitting up in bed.

"Yes, indeed, sir. Mr. Gerald Trask, the banker, was shot and killed last night in his own library, and a friend of his, a Mr. Robert Strickland, was taken, you might almost say red-handed, with a pistol in his hand."

It is needless to say that nothing more was required to banish the last trace of drowsiness from my brain.

Gerald Trask was known to me personally, although our social circles were of the slightest. Robert Strickland I knew by sight. Robert Strickland, and everything I had ever heard of him tended to show that he was a man of unusual high character.

I made haste with my toilet, nearly cutting myself—a thing unheard of—a thing which has not happened to me above a dozen times in my life! Over my breakfast, I read the accounts through the papers.

They were, them all; the same extraordinary story varied only in unimportant details. The staring head-lines, one of them bristling with exclamation points, could be read on the front page at a considerable length:

TRASK THE BANKER MURDERED IN HIS LIBRARY!
Murder Struck Down by Devoted Secretary!
Mrs. Trask Also Attacked! Her Assailant Escapes! Most Daring Crime Committed in New York in Years!

Robbery the Probably Motive! and so on and so on, in the hysterical manner which even our best newspapers are pleased sometimes to affect.

Having carefully read each account and turned the papers over to McLean, who was doing his best to conceal his eagerness to have his turn at them. I went at once to my study and sat down to reduce to writing the plain, narrative of the events which had transpired at the home of Gerald Trask.

The end of about a quarter of an hour, I found that I had been able to make my statement as clear as crystal, and appeared to be the principal (unverified) facts.

Shortly after 9:30 o'clock, Gerald Trask had returned from Long Branch, N. J., to his office, and his secretary, a young man by the name of Stanley Glover, who lived in the house, and appears to have been on terms approaching intimacy with both his employer and his wife (a policy which both experience and observation have taught me to avoid if trouble nine times out of ten, unless both parties concerned are of the most discretion), chatting pleasantly in the library. At the end of ten or fifteen minutes, young Glover left the room, drawn to his own room, with the purpose of checking over various items in men's accounts for Mrs. Trask, the family being about to close the house preparatory to going away for the Summer in accordance with their usual custom.

While he was still in the room, however, two incidents occurred which, in the light of subsequent events, seem to be not without significance. He had been obliged to await his employer's return before getting the account book from the safe, which was set into one of the walls of the room. The safe was a new one, and Mrs. Trask had recently told to get the combination from her husband.

On being asked for the combination, Trask had searched vainly in all of his pockets for the card on which he himself, had written it only the day before. Finally, he had come to the conclusion that he must have, inadvertently, given it to his friend, Robert Strickland, at whom apartment he had stopped for a moment on his way from the train.

He had, it seemed, invited Strickland to join a fishing party at Long Branch for the following week, and had written the address of his house on a card which he had taken from his pocket without examining the other side. As none of the cards still remaining in the card-case had the desired combination written on it, it seemed only logical to suppose that he had carelessly used that particular one on which to write the address. However, with an effort of memory he was able to recall the necessary combination of numbers, and opened the safe himself.

Furthermore, it appears that Strickland had been in considerable financial difficulty for some little time, though no immediate trouble has risen. Trask had accepted his note for ten thousand dollars, which note had fallen due two days before, that is to say, on the 22d inst.

The assertion of Strickland's name had recalled to the careful secretary the fact that this note was now overdue. On his mentioning this circumstance, Trask had taken ten one thousand dollar bills from his pocket, laughingly explaining that Strickland had paid the note that very evening in this very unusual manner on the ground that it had been so darned hard to get, that he wanted the pleasure of paying it in cash, rather than by check. (A most unbusinesslike and childish proceeding for which, I may say, I cannot find any excuse.) Before leaving the room, the secretary had placed this money in the safe, with the understanding that he was to deposit it properly in the morning without fail.

How long after his departure she and her husband continued their conversation Mrs. Trask is unable to say. (This seems reasonable, as she is till in a very emotional and excited condition.) At most, she thinks it could not have been longer than half an hour. They went to their respective bedrooms, both of which open off the library, (I should like to see a plan of the house.) She had hardly begun her toilet for the night when she fancied that she heard a slight noise in the room she had just quitted. Supposing that it was her husband returning for a book or a magazine, she opened the door to tell him not to read late. (It seems that he had the bad habit of reading in bed.) The noise which cannot fail to be injurious to the eyes.)

She had no sooner stepped into the room than she was seized by the throat by a man who seemed entering from behind the door. At the same moment her head was enveloped in a towel or cloth of some sort, and she was forced to the floor. (The cloth thrown over her head turns out to have been an embroidered scarf, or table cloth, which her assailant had snatched from the library table, presumedly for the purpose of preventing her from crying out.) She is only able to give a muffled scream before her head is struck violently against the edge of a leather divan that stood in the room.

She was on the point of losing consciousness partly from the blow caused by the impact of her head against the furniture, and partly from the tight hold on her throat, when the pressure was relaxed, and she was forced to the floor. The next instant three things occurred almost simultaneously. There came the quick report of a pistol shot (she does not pretend to have recognized what it was at the time), the grip on her throat was suddenly relaxed, and, with a scream she attempted to free her head from the scarf and struggle to her feet, she heard her husband exclaim: "Stricklland!"

She had just succeeded in getting the scarf partly away from her face when the pistol rang out again. 2 PLEAD GUILTY IN AUTO CRASH CASES

Herbert F. Phillips and George M. Tyner, who were arrested Saturday night on charges of drunkenness, and Dr. Charles H. Gilbert, who was arrested at the same time charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, appeared in the South Boston District Court today before Judge Logan.

Phillips and Tyner pleaded guilty and their cases placed on file. At the request of Dr. Gilbert's counsel, his case was continued until Thursday.

The three men were arrested as a result of an accident Saturday night on Summer street extension, when the light touring car they were in crashed through the fence opposite the viaduct and plunged down a twenty-foot embankment. The men rolled to the bottom of the embankment, the car stopping part way down. All three men were considerably bruised, Phillips appearing in court today on crutches, while Tyner and Dr. Gilbert's faces were bruised and cut. The police say a fourth man in the party escaped injury and fled before the arrival of the police.

Thomas Connolly, secretary to Governor Walsh and recently appointed judge to the Brighton Municipal Court, sat on the bench with Judge Logan during today's session.

67 Drunks at One Station in 7 Hours

A record number of arrests for drunkenness for one tour of duty, from 5:45 p. m. to 12:45 a. m., was made Saturday night in the East Dedham street district. Sixty-seven men and women were arrested within that seven hours. Seven were women. Others were booked in the same period for other offences.

BIG SUFFRAGE PARADE AT CAPITAL

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Following one of the most spectacular street demonstrations yet seen in Washington, participated in by women from every section of the nation, resolutions amending the Constitution to give the women the vote were introduced today in the House by Representative Mondell of Wyoming. At the same time there was placed on file a petition containing 500,000 signatures asking that the resolution be passed.

On leaving their petition, the women proceeded to the White House, where they were received by the President.

Representative Mondell has arranged to have his resolution made number one in the records of the House. The parade was headed by Mrs. Field and Mrs. Jolliffe, who brought the petition across the continent from San Francisco by auto

An interesting brunette among the younger social set is Miss Gertrude Lovett, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Williamson Lovett, of No. 7 Fairfield street, Back Bay.

Miss Lovett, whose debut proved a society event, since coming out has taken part in numerous entertainments in which society has figured. She was one of an attractive group of society "salesgirls" at Mrs. James J. Storrow's Barbecue last October. She will figure in numerous social affairs this Winter.

Her healthy outdoor appearance in keeping with her love of athletics and feminine sports, is not the least of Miss Lovett's attractions.

Eltham House

A Revelation of English Society Life

The Critics Say:—

"That 'Eltham House' will be widely read there can be no manner of doubt. Splendid, opulent, rich in tradition and in color—reading this book is very like moving through one of the great suites of rooms in 'Eltham House.'"
—NEW YORK TIMES.

"'Eltham House' is a significant novel of English social life—filled with emotional feeling. The author has portrayed many a fine woman, but none with such fervor and certainty as Caroline Lady Wrag. Mrs. Ward's novels are virtually an episodic history of English Life."
—THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

"Mrs. Ward's art is as virile to-day as it was two decades ago."
—THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT.

"Mrs. Ward has not only handled a delicate and difficult situation with conviction and skill but has written the ablest book that has come from her pen to some years."—THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN.

"'Eltham House' has more direct force and vitality than anything Mrs. Ward has done for some time."

SIX INJURED AS TROLLEY CAR JUMPS RAIL

Six men were injured early today when a street car on the Blue Hill Street Railway jumped the track and plunged across Blue Hill avenue, near Oak street, overturning in the middle of the street.

The injured are

Harry Gay, No. 1 Fort avenue, Roxbury, abrasions and cut by flying glass.

William Simons, West street, Roslindale, injuries to both knees and back.

Ervin Kisling, Washington street, Roslindale, bruises and cut by glass.

Benjamin Haskell, Ferndale street, Dorchester, abrasions and bruises.

Joseph Ullenberger, a student at Milton Academy, injury to knee.

Conductor John Finn, injuries to knees and numerous cuts.

The car left Canton at midnight for Mattapan in charge of Conductor John Finn and Motorman Joseph Cashen, both of Canton, and carried eight young men as passengers. Some of these jumped off the car after it left the rail and before it overturned. The rest who were hurt, however, stayed inside until after the smash and crawled out by smashing windows as the car lay on its side.

Dr. George W. Winchester of Mattapan, the nearest physician to the scene of the accident, dressed the wounds of the injured men and they were allowed to go to their homes.

Jailed and Fined for Job 'Ad' Fraud

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 6.—Alphonse Paul of Worcester pleaded guilty in court today of receiving money under false pretences. He was fined $100 and sentenced to ninety days in jail. Paul, it is charged, worked an employment swindle in New England cities. He advertised jobs in Jacksonville to men and women. When the applicants called he demanded a fee of $10. Paul is wanted by the police of Worcester and Springfield on the same charges.

Effort to Improve N. Y. Mail Service

In an effort to improve the mail service between Boston and New York, Superintendent Warren C. Van Dervoort of the railway mail service for New England today conferred with the officials of the New Haven Railroad. This conference is the result of complaints made to the railway mail service by several business houses both in New York and Boston, that delays are being experienced in the handling of the mails between both cities.

Police Stop Fish Pier Labor Clash

The police were called to the Commonwealth Fish Pier during the noon hour today to prevent a riot between union men and strikebreakers who are working on the trawlers at the end of the pier.

While non-union men were working on the trawlers a body of union men came alongside the ships and threatened the men if they refused to come off the ships and join the strikers.

ZELDA SEARS, who plays a mother role in "The Show Shop," coming to Park Square Theatre December 13.

"I never had a stage mother," said Zelda Sears, who plays one of them in "The Show Shop," coming to the Park Square Theatre beginning Monday, December 13. "And, what is more, I'm not a stage mother myself—except on the stage.

"I met many of my friends have come since this play opened and said 'Now, Mrs. Sears, you can't tell me you haven't daughters of your own.' And never in the world know how it is such a perfect mother if you don't have at least one.'

"The silly. I haven't anything at all to do with it.

"I'd enough to play stage mothers, goodness knows. I won't say just what age it was that I went on the stage, it was a long time ago, and in the same company with me was Jimmy Forbes, who wrote the very play he's playing in now. We both lived in Chicago, and we were both stagestruck.

DR. SARGENT ON VALUE OF BODY TRAINING

In the Harvard Crimson of today, Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, director of the Hemenway Gymnasium, declares that the groundwork of the whole matter of preparedness, be it war or peace, is physical efficiency.

Dr. Sargent says:

"In a fighting army from the lowest to the highest, every man is subjected to the severest form of physical, nervous and mental strain. He must be able to perform long marches and fight and eat and obtain what rest he can all under circumstances which may often be impossible of endurance for any but the physically sound and experienced recruit. The man who gives way under this pressure, be he private soldier or, for worse, commanding officer, is at once a burden rather than a help to his country.

"Now it is neither good physiology nor common sense to expect the average business man—students and workers in human incubators, preferring riding to walking, indoors to outdoors, and the bleachers to the track or gridiron—to become at once, or even in many months by process of development sufficiently hardened to withstand the shock of war.

"Hence, if, for the moment we suppose that military drill, as the term is commonly understood, is the best possible mental training for war, of what avail is it, if it does not prepare men physically as well?"

Military drill, Dr. Sargent says, is not in any sense a substitute for physical training.

The article concludes:

"Physical training in the United States is, as compared to Europe, merely in its infancy, and it will never be much beyond this as long as 90 per cent. of the student body take their exercise by reading hygiene and their athletics by sitting on the bleachers."

HERZOG LIKELY TO REMAIN AS REDS' LEADER

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

WHEN they are not winning the pennants in the Winter time, Cincinnati "fans" amuse themselves picking a new manager for the Reds.

It is nothing unusual at this time to read of dissatisfaction among the players. Anything goes in the Winter time.

It seems a bit of poor policy for the management to depose Herzog, who, while he may have more "pep" than a conservative manager displays, is a grand ball player, a clever baseball man and one who works every minute of the day for the success of his team.

* * *

UNLESS men on a ball club know that their manager is in supreme control and has a contract for a period of years, there is apt to be pulling and hauling in the ranks. Until Cincinnati adopts such a policy there will continue to be just such yarns, all tending to disrupt the club. Cincinnati is a fine baseball city with plenty of support in sight for a team that is working in unison. Herzog hasn't had the best of material, and there have been disturbing influences to combat.

Another season would tell the story more clearly and from this distance it looks as if President Herrmann would continue his team under the direction of this scrappy player.

* * *

SHOULD Herzog be taken from the Reds it would mean a sale or trade, for he would hardly continue as a player where he had managed.

The latest yarn is that Brooklyn is looking longingly in his direction should he lose out as manager.

* * *

MIKE KELLY has signed to manage the St. Paul club of the American Association.

* * *

JOE JACKSON reports that his bruised leg which hampered him during the closing days of last season is now all right. He expects to "travel at top speed."

* * *

AS the Phillies have agreed to play three games with the Senators, on June 8, 9 and 11, the annual Spring series between Moran's men and the Connie Macks is likely to be off. For several seasons the interest in this series has been light owing to the playing of recruits.

* * *

FRANK J. CARROL, third baseman of the Fordham College baseball team, has signed to play with the Giants. He was with the New Yorkers last Summer for a little while, being sent to Toronto.

* * *

THE best second baseman prospect I've seen in ten years" is what Johnny Evers says of Charley Mullen, who is to play with the Highlanders.

Well, Ty, I disagree with you. While baseball is the big sport, football fills big place in the world. It is a grand spectacle, a test of endurance, skill, nerve and temper. Of course, any protracted season is out of the question, both in point of the strain and also the weather conditions. I am not an enthusiast, but I enjoy football.

* * *

"Watch Sermon" was the battle cry of all the teams that played the Springfield Y. M. C. A. team. Now I see Sermon has been chosen captain for next year. Yes, you all had better watch Sermon. Some player, take it from me.

* * *

They are off on the long grind at Madison Square Garden. This year's bike race will be more interesting, I should judge, owing to the new methods of teaming the riders.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN

by Walter J. Mcgraw ville
MOR'STOP OF THE BRAVES

Fumbles played their part in the Everett-Detroit game, just as I predicted. Even though the title of National Interscholastic Football Champion is not determined, the contending teams played in championship form, so the boys from Everett deserve great credit for the showing they made. It must have been an exciting contest and should spur the school teams on to an effort to perfect themselves in the open game. The forward pass is a spectacular feature enjoyed by the "fans," and it is also a great ground-gainer when teams are evenly matched in the line.

* * *

While there appears to be little definite information as to the result of the conference upon the revision of rules governing football, it is hoped that something will come of the meeting to clear the atmosphere, and I trust that Summer baseball will be accepted in a rational manner.

* * *

The Cubs seem to be in the market for college players as strong today as "Connie" Mack. Malcolm Galvin of the University of Wisconsin is the latest to be approached by Roger Bresnahan.

* * *

For several years there has been talk about the suppression of barnstorming by players after the World's Series has closed. Claims are made that such trips injure the game and also the players. Well, maybe they do but it is a fact that Frank Baucteft's recent tour with All-Stars of both the American and National Leagues could not have been made without the consent of the owners of the various clubs to whom these men belonged. Perhaps these owners had not made up their minds to prohibit barnstorming, or maybe President B. B. Johnson's idea that these trips should not continue is not enjoyed by others whose money is invested in the sport.

* * *

Barnstorming doesn't hurt the player, nor does it injure the game, it gives "fans" who only see minor league baseball a chance to witness men, of whom they have only read in action. It strikes me that barnstorming is somewhat of an ad. for the great National Pastime.

* * *

However, this topic, together with the salary question, will come up for discussion at the annual meetings of the leagues.

* * *

Cleveland is to give Ben Coveleskie the big right-hand twirler of the Portland, Or., team, a tryout in the Spring. Ben is a brother of Harry Covelskie of the Tigers, and is regarded as the "big noise" of the Pacific Coast League.

* * *

Cobb is one of those who "can't see football." He prefers to be brutality and the fact that only a few of the spectators really know what is going on. Well, Ty, I disagree with you. While baseball is the big sport, football fills big place in the world. It is a grand spectacle, a test of endurance, skill, nerve and temper. Of course, any protracted season is out of the question, both in point of the strain and also the weather conditions. I am not an enthusiast, but I enjoy football.

* * *

"Watch Sermon" was the battle cry of all the teams that played the Springfield Y. M. C. A. team. Now I see Sermon has been chosen captain for next year. Yes, you all had better watch Sermon. Some player, take it from me.

COMING HOCKEY SEASON TO BE BEST EVER

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

With the actual opening of the skating season, now but five days away, Bostonians are anxiously awaiting the hour that Manager Lougee throws the Arena doors open. They appreciate that almost as soon as the Arena surface is ready for skating the hockey season is on.

The Arena management is going ahead making its schedule for the season, and Manager Lougee states that the season will be the best in the history of the hockey game in Boston. The schedule will call for more games than in any year heretofore, and the teams that play will be the best ever.

Effort will be made to bring the best amateur, and possibly professional, teams in Canada, and the local amateur teams will be so strengthened that Bostonians are assured of rare sport anyhow.

TINGLEY TO REFEREE.

That will probably result in the local appearance of Hobey Baker, the old Princeton star, with the crack St. Nicholas team.

Dr. Tingley, Tris Speaker's mighty hunting companion, will act as referee in this season's games. Considerable pressure was brought to bear on him by Manager Lougee and others interested in hockey before he consented to act.

The practice schedule at the Arena allows the Harvard varsity and club teams the surface from 5 to 7 o'clock on Mondays; B. A. A., from 6 to 7 on Tuesdays; the Harvard teams between 6 and 7 Wednesday, with the Arena team occupying the surface for the next hour; B. A. A., 6 to 7, Thursdays, and Harvard varsity the next hour; the Harvard teams, from 6 to 7 Fridays, and the Arena team the next hour, and Technology, from 1 to 6 Saturdays.

Bostonians are considerably interested as a result of the formation of the Arena Hockey Club and the announcement that the new organization intends to attempt a standardization of the hockey game for New England.

It is thought that a series of conferences with the officers of the new club meeting those from the B. A. A. and Harvard Clubs will work for the ultimate good of the game here.

Then again Boston sportdom is interested in the possibility of another big sporting organization in Boston. The scheme as worked out by Dr. E. K. Murphy of Roxbury calls for a permanent organization with a home, and it is thought that such a club will tend to increase the sporting reputation of Boston.

YALE SIGNS HERNFOCK.

Though the series of International games for the Ross Cup will be played in New York, with the St. Nicholas hockey team meeting the Star Hockey Club of Montreal, Boston is nevertheless interested.

Two games out of three will decide possession of the trophy which Art Ross has donated for amateur competition.

The first game is played in Montreal next Saturday night with the second in New York on December 16. The date and place for a third game, should it be necessary, will be decided later. Should St. Nicholas fail to bring the cup home a Boston team may take a shot at it.

As usual the Yale athletic committee has crossed up all the predictions. Instead of engaging Fred Rocque for hockey coach they have signed J. Hurnfock, who developed the wonderful Princeton team on which Hobey Baker played and captained. Captain Burgess made the announcement.

Soccer Shots

GENERAL ELECTRIC eliminates the New Bedford Celtics in the national cup series. The losing team played the better game, but got all the worst of the breaks.

BILLY GILLESPIE of the old Manchester team, played up to his reputation. He tied the game with his clever goal kick a few minutes after the start of play in the second half.

CAY, playing his first game for the U. S. A., scored the winning goal on a long dribble. It was a classy play.

WITH four tries and four ties, the Fore River and the Chicopee lovers are still 20-20.

ST. GEORGE'S clearly outpointed the Lynn Posse and should have been crowned the victors, five goals to one. Two goals were earned, but the referee took three of them away, claiming he detected off-side play when the shots were made.

CATHOLIC UNION—Two teams on Catholic Union Alleys.

HARTFORD ROLLS FRANK RUTTLE IN SPECIAL

The first important Individual bowling match of the season will be decided this week, when "Bo" Hartford, one of the best match game bowlers in the city, and Frank Ruttle of Roxbury meet to settle the question of supremacy.

The contest will embody twenty strings. The first ten will be rolled this evening on the Intercolonial Alleys, Roxbury, while the final and deciding ten will be staged on the Arch street alleys Wednesday night. A purse of $100 is staked on the result. Little is known of Ruttle in the city proper, but the Roxbury crowd think well enough of him to send him against one of the game's best bets. It was through the efforts of Charles Johnson, proprietor of the Intercolonial Alleys, that the match was made.

LOOP TOURNEY A SUCCESS.

The Boston Loop prize tournament bids fair to become a record breaker. Managers Weisberg and Betts are elevated over the large number of entries they have received to date and the success of the affair is assured.

The entry blanks show a well balanced prize list for both men and women. The qualifying rounds are now on and will continue until about March 1, when the finals will be bowled. Special weekly prizes are being offered for the best single and three strings, and, to insure a wide distribution, no bowler can win the special only once. For the opening prizes, qualifying and final rounds will be bowled. However, there will not be any finals for women. They can bowl as often as they please and the highest score at the completion of the tournament will net their owners the prizes. Entry blanks can be obtained by addressing Weisberg and Betts, Boston Loop Alleys, No. 217 Friend street, city.

ANOTHER SPECIAL MATCH.

Eddie Grant of the Court treet City League team, with his partner, "Billy" Milliken, manager of the North Station Alleys, will roll a special twenty-string match this week against Shannon and Abbot of Somerville.

The first ten strings take place at the Bowlaway Alleys, Union Square, Somerville, tomorrow night, while the final half of the battle will take places on the lanes of the North Station Alleys Thursday evening.

Mt. Bellevue is setting the pace in the Knights of Pythias League, having won sixteen of its twenty games. With the exception of the Marathon and D. O. K. K. lodges, every outfit seems to have a good chance of standing in the race.

Thorpe Is Hero of Ohio's Pro Battle

Jim Thorpe has crowded back into the football limelight again. Jim won the professional football championship of Ohio for the Massillon all-star cast in the game against the Canton Professionals almost alone and unaided, booting a couple of goals from the field and tearing things wide open in other respects.

Archie Hahn Is Showing Brown Western Tricks

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 6.—Head Coach Ed Robinson is elated over the form of the Brown University eleven, now that the squad has had a good rest following its strenuous season and all the cripples are back in condition, and is in high hopes that it will cover itself with glory in its battle with Washington State at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day.

Archie Hahn, Brown's new track coach, was athletic director at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., last year and is naturally well acquainted with the style of play of the far westerners. He is giving Robinson valuable aid showing the Brown warriors how to ward off Washington's attack and also what offence should prove the most successful.

The Brown management plans breaking up the long six-day cross-continent trip by arranging a couple of brief layovers where the players can take light work.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Ted Cather's signed contract has been received by the Tigers' management. Bert Whaling has ceased his squawking and is expected to come to terms with the management this week.

HILL NARROWLY MISSES SPILL IN N. Y. RACE

By NAT BUTLER.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 6.—At 10 o'clock this morning, the tenth hours of New York's big six-day bike race, the seventeen teams in the contest were tied at 233 miles and 3 laps. Almost from the minute the race started it developed into a defensive riding affair, with all riders constantly on the alert and watching the other men in the race.

Local followers of the spore are unanimous in expressing the opinion that by tonight there will be a decided change in the field. They think that some of the teams are due for elimination. The star riders, and they number Grenda and Hill, the Boston winners; McNamara and Spears, who rode second to them in the same race, and some of the foreign consider that seventeen teams are too many for safety.

During the early hours this morning there was one short sprint and as a result of it 34 riders were on the track at one time. That there was not a serious spill is marvelled at by those who were present. The arena is covered with tanbark and the dust which arises from it is giving all of the riders more or less trouble with their eyes.

In one sprint Freddie Hill was blinded and narrowly missed a spill. Had he gone down it is a certainty that he would have taken a major portion of the field down with him. They were bunched at the time and Hill was well toward the front. Fortunately he was able to keep his wheel until relieved and the danger eliminated.

EVERETT SQUAD HOME FROM THE WEST

The Everett High School squad, with its corps of trainers, rooters and friends, arrived at South Station early today. The players were met at the station by a number of Everett business men, who tendered them a reception and invited the new arrivals to a breakfast, which awaited them at the City Club.

The delegation was hustled to the City Club in automobiles amid the cheers of many loyal rooters.

"Dan" Silva was the only player unable to get around without the aid of "sticks." During the game the plucky and was thrown on the hard surface of the Detroit field and received a bad shaking up. A small bone in his right leg was broken.

Several of the players showed evidence of the well-known fact that they were outweighed. All the boys agreed that the champions of the West were the toughest proposition they ever encountered.

JOHNSON LAUDS TY GREEN.

Fitzgerald, the star quarterback of the local team, referred to the Detroit aggregation as the "toughest, best trained and hardest driving football team he ever played against."

Captain Johnson was called upon to say a word about the trip, and after telling a funny experience concluded his short talk by generously lauding "Ty" Green, who, in his estimation, stood out as the individual star of the game.

Coach O'Donnell made a short speech in which he also told of the wonderful game Green played. The coach complimented the entire team for the wonderful showing they made against such odds.

He said of the Detroit team: "I knew when we started for the West what we were going up against, and I took the players there after much hesitancy.

WILL TENDER TEAM BANQUET.

"The boys really did not understand what they were tackling when they started for the distant city, but they were anxious to make the trip.

"They fought hard during the entire game, and for the first time this year made use of the special defence they have been trained to use when an opposing team gets within their five-yard line."

Tonight there is to be a jollification in Everett, during the course of which a parade will visit all sections of the town. That isn't all, however, for later the team is to be tendered a banquet by the business men of the town, who consider that this season's Everett team is the best that has ever represented the town on the school gridiron.

Williams Defends His Title Tonight

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—A battle for the bantamweight championship will be fought here tonight, when Kid Williams will defend his title against Frankie Burns, the Jersey City fighter. The boys will go twenty rounds. It will be the first long contest that Williams has taken part in since he won the title from Johnny Coulon in June, 1914.

Both lads have trained faithfully for the conflict, and each is under the weight, 118 pounds ringside.

Ernie Soucy May Coach St. Mark's

Ernest W. Soucy, the Harvard end, is considering a proposition made him by St. Mark's School to coach the football team. It is understood that Soucy intends to try for the Harvard nine next Spring, in which event he would hardly give an answer at this time. All things point to his taking the position next Fall.

Colgate Not Hit Hard.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Colgate loses only three of its football stars by graduation in the Spring. Captain Abell, right tackle, and Stewart and Mitchell, the two ends, are the players who will not be back next Fall.

HARVARD MEN TO DINE GRIDIRON WARRIORS

The members of Harvard's victorious football eleven will be banqueted by the Harvard Club of Boston at the Copley-Plaza Hotel Tuesday evening, December 21. The dinner is set for 6:45 o'clock. Bertram G. Waters, '94, chairman; Bernard W. Trafford, '92, William Edmunds, '09, Sidney Curtis, '05, and Robert C. Benchley, '13, form the committee in charge of the dinner.

Although the dinner is to be given by the Harvard Club it is not to be restricted to members, as the circular sent out says. "Any Harvard man, not a member of the club, may apply for a ticket by mailing his application, with his name, address and class, department or year in which he was connected with the university, together with a check for $4.50 to Sydney Curtis, No. 50 State street.

"Each table will seat ten persons. If two or more applications are inclosed together, the committee in charge will endeavor to seat such applicants together; otherwise seats, so far as possible, will be assigned to graduates, both of the college and of other departments, by classes."

Johnny Kilbane to Stand Trial Today

ELYRIA, O., Dec. 6.—Johnny Kilbane, the world's featherweight champion, and his manager, Jimmy Dunn, indicted for assault and battery by the Lorain County Grand Jury Saturday, will appear for arraignment today. The indictment charges that Kilbane and Dunn assaulted and beat Jack Garvey, a boxer's manager, here after a bout at the Elks' Club, October 28. Dunn says the trouble followed statements by Garvey that Gilbert Yankee, managed by Garvey, had knocked Kilbane down during a workout.

Glad Hand Society Formed at Harvard

Harvard has formed a "glad hand" society for the purpose of welcoming visiting athletes to Cambridge and seeing that they have a bang-up time during their stay. R. Norris Williams, '16, captain of the tennis team, is chairman.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

PRETTY, very pretty! Amidst the Jeff Smith literature is a story that he owns the handsomest home in Bayonne, N. J., a $35,000 dwelling, which our hero paid for out of his boxing winnings; that he is a very intelligent chap, a great lover of music with an especial fondness for grand opera.

IT IS added they Smith is the father of a nineteen-months-old son, named Jeff, Jr., and that the precocious juvenile is the pride of his daddy's heart.

SMITH, who has boxed in Egypt and Monte Carlo, not to mention England, France, Ireland, Australia and Cuba, makes his Boston bow tomorrow night. His opponent is to be George Chip, the big fellow from New Castle, Pa.

SOMETIMES Chip puts up a whale of a fight. It is claimed that Smith and Chip are to weigh in at 158 pounds at 3 o'clock. This will mean that they will be good and big and tough at ringside.

THE early betting has Smith a 4 to 1 favorite over Chip.

THOUGH the bulk of the New York fight critics stated that Johnny Dundee had the better of Bloom in their battle last week, Asher forwards one clipping—sh-h-h—it's from a Brooklyn paper—which has Bloom winning by the widest of margins.

DANNY MORGAN files another brassy communication. It's so good you must not miss any of it, so we will give it to you en masse. Here goes:

"Jack Britton, the real lightweight champion, who has been ill for the past four months, is back in his old-time form. That means that Kid Lewis, the rumbling English lightweight, will go and hide himself along with the rest of the supposed champions. Britton is ready to step into the ring with Lewis in New Orleans, that is, if any of the Bake lightweights can be coaxed into the ring with him. Let's see if Lewis will step a round with Freddie Welsh, for the public knows that Freddie has danced himself into obscurity."

JOHNNY KILBANE and Ritchie Mitchell, the promising Milwaukee featherweight, are to back up in Cincinnati, December 13 or 15. The first meeting between this pair resulted in Kilbane's suspension in Wisconsin. The weight, 126 pounds ringside, shows what little right Johnny has to be toting around the 122-pounds title.

JOE WILLIS, who bills himself the "Erie Cyclone," writes the AMERICAN stating that he is claiming the middleweight wrestling championship of New England. Willis states he has the backing and will meet up to meet any and all of them at 158 pounds. He can be reached at No. 67 Chandler street.

Colgate Seeks B. C. Date.

Colgate has asked Boston College for a place on its 1915 football schedule. The game with Holy Cross is likely to be played in Boston Thanksgiving Day. Tomlinson has been booked for New York October 16.

JEFF SMITH HAS CALL TO WIN OVER CHIP

Jeff Smith, the Bayonne, N. J., middleweight, who is being brought over from New York to go to war with George Chip, the bulky battleship from Newcastle, Pa., in the main mass at tomorrow night's fistic entertainment at the Hippodrome, the first of the year at the Tremont street structure, is generally rated as standing a good chance of hooking on to the 158-pounds crown.

Smith spent some two and one-half years gaining fame and fortune in foreign rings. Sydney, Melbourne, Paris, London and Havana were among the spots he visited, and Adrian Horgan and Georges Hernard, just about the two best middleweights in France, Les Darcy, Mick King and Harold Hardwick, Australia's Big Three, and Jim O'Brien, labeled in the Smith record pamphlet as the middleweight champion of Ireland, are the most prominent of Jeff's foreign victims.

The Bayonne boy also went twenty rattling rounds with the renowned Georges Carpentier, now fighting for France, in Paris, the decision going against him. For all that the battle is described as a hummer, with Smith practically there with Carpentier at the final bell.

GLOVER HAS BOXED SMITH.

Down in Australia Smith also defeated Jimmy Clabby, while he claims that the decision going against him in his scrap with Eddie McGoorty was a villainously bad one; that the referee robbed him. Back in June, 1912, Smith went ten rounds in a no-decision bout with Mike Glover. Jeff says he had all the better of the fuss. Mike claims he beat Jeff. So there you are.

The men back of the new Armory A. A. are the very same outfit who have just got through giving Boston boxing lovers such a long string of exhilarating milling at the Arena. They were frozen out of that building, when it came time for Manager Lou gee to get ready for the skating season, and in booking the Hippodrome, the old National Theatre, secured the best possible site in Boston.

Tomorrow night's show can be relied upon going off without a hitch. Al Lippe sends word that Smith is in the best of trim, while Chip declares he is back in his old-time shape and that he is confident he is going to put the loudly-touted Jeff out of the running.

GALLANT GOING WEST.

Aleck McLean has signed Gilbert Gallant, the premier member of his stable, to meet Frankie Burns of California in a 15-round bout in Denver, Dec. 24. Gallant and Burns clashed in a red-hot twenty-round draw affair on the Pacific coast two years ago. Another date for Gallant is with Harry Pierce of New York at Bridgeport, Ct., Dec. 15. Right after that set-to McLean and Gallant will hit out for Colorado.

Now the American Boxing Association, recently formed in the Middle West to keep close cases on the fighters and the fight game generally, had its eye focused upon the Freddie Welsh-Charley White match. President Matt Hinkel of Cleveland, as well as Tom Andrews of Milwaukee, another prime mover in the organization, state that if the two lightweights should scrape a bid to meet in a short battle something will drop.

The A. B. A. will insist that Welch and White travel the longest possible distance—twenty rounds will be all right—and that there be nothing phoney to any of the arrangements. H. Con Pollok has the A. B. A. disgusted over the way he is holding up the promoters who have attempted to come to terms with him for a twenty-round battle.

Field Goal by Snow Beats Millstreams

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 6.—Playing two games in two days proved too big a task for the Chelsea Millstreams, and the Apponaugs of Providence, who defeated them by a score of 3 to 0 in yesterday's game here, are today claiming the independent championship of New England. The game was a battle royal, with a goal from the field dropped by Win Snow, the former Dartmouth star, settling matters. Snow booted the ball over from the 40-yard line in the last minute or play.

Le Boeuf, Rhode Island State's captain, was another topliner used to the Appunaug's backfield. The Millstreams put up a plucky battle and but for Snow's mighty drop kick would have gained a scoreless tie.

Two Star Bouts in Tuohey's Mat Card

George V. Tuohey has arranged a slashing good-looking wrestling show to mark his start at the Hippodrome. The arrangement is boxing on Tuesday nights, with a Tuohey mat show on Thursday night. Yousouf Hussane, the bulky Bulgarian, will meet John Perelli in the big number at this week's show. Another star set-to is the one between Tomy Drnak, the Hollander, and "Cyclone" Burns.

Jasper vs. Hertz Tonight.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 6.—Young Jasper of Boston and Karl Herts of Washington clash in a ten-round bout here tonight.

Brickley Due This Week, and to Stay

Charley Brickley, the former Harvard football captain, is planning upon going into business in Boston. Brickley has just finished a successful season as coach of the Johns Hopkins eleven and plans to be greeting old friends Thursday morning. Charley leaves Baltimore for Boston Wednesday evening and it is thought he will arrange to go into business and then remain in the city the year around. In this way he will be able to help out at Cambridge and also give Everett some gridiron aid.

Penn Harriers Choose Pilot.

Clayton F. McMichael has been chosen captain of Penn's 1915 cross-country team.

Two Hot After B. C. Football Captaincy

Boston College will elect its 1914 football captain tomorrow afternoon. The contest has resolved itself into a fight between Maurice Dullea, the big guard, and Charley Fitzgerald, who starred at right end on this year's eleven. Both athletes are graduates of Boston Latin. Dullea is a junior and Fitzgerald a sophomore.

Captain Jim Duffy, Harry Kiley, Leo Daley, Steve Fitzgerald and William Flemming are the only B. C. players that will be lost by graduation. Next week the players will be presented with gold football watch fobs by the undergraduates and banqueted by the graduate athletic board.

Baby Bollinger

By DR. HARRY J. HAISELDEN

In the first instalment of this chapter, Dr. Haiselden told of a sweet young girl whose whole nature was changed by an accidental blow upon the head. The surgeons decided not to operate to save her mind, for fear of a fatal result. A strange delusion concerning a minister of the gospel arose in her diseased brain and one day she went to call upon him in his church study. There was a scene.

By H. J. Haiselden, M. D.

Copyright, 1915, by Harry J. Haiselden.

BY some miracle he was saved this time. But that young woman is still at large. She still moves around among her fellow beings and she is as dangerous as dynamite.

They would not operate. I was powerless against their combined opinion. My hands were tied fast. I was compelled to let this stricken, dangerous thing go forth in the broad ways of the world—with no warning brand upon her.

And this girl, with her twisted, distorted mind may some day become the wife of a man—and they in turn may become the parents of a defective child. And that child—or those children—may become the parents of others.

Are you not becoming convinced just as I was convinced that it is wrong, wrong—to condemn the defective to live when it might die and lose its power to blight the world with its kind?

There is actually no means of compelling the detention of this little derelict unless some day a violent outbreak occurs—and then don't you see—it will be too late.

Why are we forever and ever committing the error of locking the barn after the horse has been stolen? Why do we wait for crimes before shutting up those who have criminal tendencies? We quarantine those stricken with smallpox before the disease can spread. And yet here is a far more terrific disease that is allowed to scatter its seeds abroad regardless and we do nothing to acquaster it until some of that seed has fallen and taken root.

FIGHTING FIRE IN FRONT

It is like fighting a prairie fire—always behind the fire—never in front of it.

I recall another case—a particularly touching one—and yet with the always sinister not in it—the veil of secrecy over it which gives an added menace. This young woman is a member of one of the best known families in this city. She is strikingly beautiful in appearance. She comes of good stock. And yet if you go back into the family history only a little way you will learn of episodes that will make your blood run chill.

This girl attended grammar school and was well into high school before the hidden family taint broke forth in her.

"Peculiar ideas," was the phrase used to describe her strange mental condition.

She was strong and athletic. She took part in the school debates and defended her position with unusual skill.

As her doom crept upon her her mind assumed an added brilliance as though it were burning too rapidly. Strangers prophesied a great future for her.

But a dread was coming into the hearts of the inner members of the family cult. They had seen this super-brilliance before and distrusted it. They knew that the family taint was beginning to assert itself. They did not have to wait long.

DIGS HER OWN GRAVE

The girl began to talk of suicide. Then one day she took a spade and made her way to a grove near the home and began to dig. The muscular exercise and the fresh air for an instant drove away the gathering fumes of insanity.

The young girl stood aghast before the grave she had dug for herself. Then she sank herself down beside it and burst into tears. There they found her—and knew that the long awaited blow had fallen and that this brilliant young mind was wrecked—completely wrecked.

The family taint was there.

Today this girl is entirely unable to take care of herself. And yet she is allowed to go into public places. She is even encouraged to go about in the social set to which the family is proud to belong.

Within this stricken girl the desire for home life, for love, for a family is especially strong. And in this she is encouraged by the parents who brought her into the world. They have not learned their lesson in spite of the sorrow of recent years. They do not see the tragedy and the crime in perpetuating this taint—in handing it down to other little ones as they have handed it down to her.

Come with me into one more of these homes where the skeleton is ever closeted—but ever near, hidden away like a secret wound to vitiate life and make it a thing of sorrow and pain.

LIES AS THOUGH DEAD.

One evening when I was sitting at home my telephone jangled. A woman, evidently at a high pitch of horror, begged me to hurry to her home. It was her son. Something dreadful had happened to him, and she couldn't imagine what was the matter.

I found a house of revelry. A gay party was in progress. I was steered through the brilliantly lighted room and gay groups of young people into a little room beyond, where a young man lay as though dead—his collar loosened, his hands clutching at his throat, his face purple.

After one look I turned to the hostess of the evening. She stood beside the couch in evening dress—her face the color of a cigar ash.

"What is it—what is it?" she asked in a whisper. And as I looked into her eyes I saw that she knew. She pretended not to know just to still the commotion within her breast. She knew, and she knew that she was to blame, and yet she would not confess it—even to herself.

I was blunt—brutal.

"It's opt——"

She broke in on me.

"My God, don't!" she cried, covering her face with hands that sparkled with jewels. "Don't mention that dreadful word. Do something for him—anything. But don't call it that. Don't."

I did what I could for the young man. When he revived he looked at me questioningly. I was almost from the room as though I was possessed of some devil—instead of them.

"If you let him go about young woman," I told the mother, "if you let him marry, you will be committing an unpardonable crime."

I was curtly dismissed. Another doctor was called to take the case. I learned later that the young man's fiancee was at the ball—it had been given in her honor.

Today they are married.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Do You Know That—

An interesting point in connection with the Garter that was recently conferred upon King Albert of the Belgians is the fact that it was held by his uncle, the late King Leopold, for forty years, and previously by his grandfather for half a century. In the whole history of the order there is no instance of two occupants holding the dignity successively for so long a period.

It is stated that hundreds of thousands of gallons of choice nut oil are being lost every year in British Honduras because no practical means has been found for its recovery.

The Turkish mother loads her child with amulets as soon as it is born, and a small bit of mud, steeped in hot water, prepared by previous charms, is struck on its forehead.

There are twice as many blind people in Russia as in the whole of the rest of Europe.

Since the sixteenth century Holland has reclaimed more than 1,000,000 acres from the sea.

The flying fish does not really fly, but raises itself from the water by means of its long fins. It can support itself in the air until they become dry, when it drops back into the sea.

Ice skating is destined to occupy the position this Winter that dancing has hitherto possessed among smart circles. Of course, the most popular form of skating will be done with a partner, and simple skating steps can be learned with astonishing rapidity if attention is given to the balance of the body.

This first article, by Cathleen Pope, whose skating with George Kerner is one of the features of the New York Hippodrome, illustrates some of the positions to be studied to acquire grace on the ice. Two other articles will follow.

By Cathleen Pope

PAIR skating implies adaptability. One must learn first to skate independently, and then care must be taken to meet one's partner's stroke or change of stroke. Evenness and accuracy are more necessary in pair skating than to the person who skates alone.

Each beginner should be able to do the outside edge forward circles, and at least strike out alone in the backward edges even if unable to carry out the full circle backward.

The waltz is in some respects the most effective of all pair skating, and the ten step can be done by skaters whose individual ability is limited to the outside edge circles and threes.

Practice first skating foward as in figure one, one behind the other, right and left hands touching and letting the skater behind swing across the direction of the skater in front. Thus at the end of the stroke the positions will be reversed, and the man will be on the left side of the girl. Be careful that there is independent skating as far as possible lest the balance of the body be disturbed.

The next figure illustrated is attained at the end of the figure one. The skaters, after making the circle swing across, and reverse positions, the girl's right hand in the man's right, and the position is finished in this reversed posture.

A pretty variation is shown in figure three, the girl's right hand held across the man's body with his right hand. A strong full stroke on the right outside forward edge is taken which carries the skaters around a complete circle, and the hands of both will joined are passed over the head of the girl and brought down on the right side.

How I Discovered Myself

The Successful Woman Series

By ALICE DUER MILLER,
Author and Suffrage Worker

OF course I am buried heart and soul in suffrage work. I know that few people would think it possible if I told the real reason for my interest in the cause. The first thing that made me think of suffrage as a struggle very much worth while was my college education.

When I entered Barnard College there was still a great deal of talk about the advisability of a college education for girls. The people who are fighting against suffrage now are the same people who fought against a college education then, and surely this is the best argument that I could possibly advance in the line of suffrage for women.

The argument that college education would be the ruination of a girl's chances for marriage interested me when I decided that a college education was what I wanted, and I was continually alert for impressions while I was studying. Mrs. Luxow was advancing some of her theories at the time, and I studied under her with a great desire to know more about the subject.

I knew then, as I know now, that a college education for women is tremendously important, much more so than it is for men. Men get a training, anyway, from life, which is not open to women. Women then got little chance for community life; in fact, college is the one great opportunity, and has developed into a great necessity, as a great many people were sure it would and as a great many people are sure that suffrage will.

I was predisposed, then, toward suffrage and ready to see and know more constantly. Finally I conceived the idea that if I didn't do my part in the work other women would do it for me, and I began to do what I could to advance the cause.

So closely do I consider suffrage related to college education that I believe it is a subject almost parallel. Just as in college opportunities must be opened, so must different opportunities be opened in the question of the ballot.

In every college where men and women study together, there is a differentiation in courses. Just so will it be when suffrage has advanced to the point where such a differentiation can be made, and perhaps then men and women will vote on different things.

Any great idea or common interest that draws a body of women together so that they work as sisters, instead of enemies, is a big thing. I believe that colleges was the opening wedge for the great solidity of women which woman suffrage has forced in deeper.

I believe that the history of the world will bulk larger some day when this dream of women all over the country comes true. I believe that intelligent women are working out their own salvation through work and common humanity, and the courage of their own convictions.

Anecdotes of the Famous

PRINCESS MARY of England has been doing charitable work.

Many good stories are told of Mary's sayings. When she was a little girl the Queen took her to the Tower. The royal party came upon a fine suit of armor with spiked helmet, spikes on the knees and spurs all complete.

Thinking to imbue the Princess with the chivalry of those days her Majesty said: "This, Mary is a suit of armor which used to be worn by the knights of old. What do you think of it?"

For a time the Princess remained silent, while she seemed to be thinking deeply.

"Perhaps it was all right," she said, "but can't you imagine how awfully it must have scratched the furniture?"

Mme Sarah Bernhardt is fond of relating a funny experience she once had during her early days as an actress, with an actor who was something of a wit.

"It is so long ago," she says, "that I recall neither the player nor the play, only the part wherein the scene was spoiled.

"The hero said to me, 'Do you object to this cigar' which he had already lighted and was puffing vigorously. 'No, no, no!' I answered, which was the cue for him to tell me the story of his life. He looked at me instead, and said, rolling the cigar between his fingers, 'That, madame, is because you do not have to smoke it!'

"The audience appreciated the fact that he was smoking a cigar furnished by the property man, and roared with laughter, but this interference made him forget his lines. He could not recollect a word, so, taking my arm, he said, 'Come with me for a walk, and I will tell you the story of my life.' We walked off the stage, and on at the next entrance, which required no more than two seconds of time, and then he said, 'Now I have told you the story of my life.'"

Some time ago Hall Caine had an amusing experience at a dinner party. The conversation happened to turn upon the making of puns, and another literary man who was present asserted that he could make a pun on anyone in the room.

His challenge was accepted, whereupon he began to look very serious and appeared to be lost in thought.

"Come now," exclaimed Mr. Hall Caine, rather impatiently, "we are all waiting!"

"Quite so," retorted the joker, "but please don't be in such a hurry, Caine!"

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Checks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets; you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which causes a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Try this easy way to clear your skin with

Resinol Soap

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and warm water, working the creamy lather into the skin gently with the finger-tips. Then wash off with more Resinol Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of clear cold water to close the pores.

Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear, fresh and velvety.

If the skin is in bad condition through neglect or an unwise use of cosmetics, apply a little Resinol Ointment* and let it remain on ten minutes before the final washing with Resinol Soap.

Resinol Soap is not artificially colored, its rich brown being entirely due to the Resinol balsams it contains. Sold by all druggists and dealers in toilet goods. For free sample cake and trial of Resinol Ointment, write Dept. 3-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

NEWSBOYS ARE AMERICAN'S GUESTS

"We are all set for Polo's Theatre tonight on Elm street." These words came direct from the newsboys of Worcester who are to be the guests of Frank Whitbeck, manager of Poli's Theatre, and through the courtesy of the Boston AMERICAN.

Through the courtesy of Chief of Police George H. Hill of Worcester a sergeant and five police officers will escort the boys to the theatre tonight. The Boston AMERICAN newsboys will form in line for their parade at No. 73 Mechanic street, in front of the Boston AMERICAN Worcester branch at 7:30 p. m., and will march down Commercial street to Front street, Myrtle street to Main street to Elm street to Poli's Theatre, accompanied by a band. An elaborate bill has been prepared for this week's performance at Poli's. Among the attractions are:

CLARE VINCENT & CO.—In a comedy sketch, written by David Belasco's "Tea Rose-ary," called "The Recoil."

MASON, WILLIAM & JORDAN—In a pantomime comedy, "The Soldier's Dream."

SCHAAD AND CLARK—The two boys from Dixie.

SYLVESTER AND VANCE—In a comedy singing, dancing and talking act called "Out of My Trunks."

"WHEN WAR THREATENED"—A two-reel Biograph feature picturing:

FATHER WILLIAM—Who has run and won seven times in the world and authentic war scenes.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks opened a shade higher as a rule in New York, with business of good volume for a few minutes. The price range was narrow. A number of issues declined a trifle, but more advanced a little. Anaconda was up a point at the start, but soon lost most of the gain. The public did not come into the market to any extent after the rise in prices on Saturday. Like professionals, the casual speculators are said to be waiting for publication of the President's message. Many operators are of the opinion that the market has already discounted anything Mr. Wilson may say which would have a bearish effect. Wall Street believes the message is a plea for preparedness in case of war and that it also treats of revenue problems. That there has been a shrewd guess at the context of the message, if not pretty accurate knowledge, may account for the sudden advance of stocks at the week-end.

NEW HIGH FOR GENERAL MOTORS

General Motors opened at 500, a new high record price, and soon sold at 516, a gain of 17¾ from Saturday's close. At the end of fifteen minutes the lone appeared to be firmer, but the list did not present any striking features. Anaconda was stronger as issues at that time were Goodrich and U. S Rubber. They were more active than usual, but changes were few and gains by the many were fractional only.

Advances included American Smelting ⅛, Anaconda ½, Chino ¼, Utah ¼, Consolidated Gas ¼, Kanawanna Steel ⅛, U. S. Steel ¼, Beet Sugar ⅛, American Locomotive ⅛, Baldwin ¼, Colorado Fuel ⅛, Crucible Steel ⅛, Steel ¾, General Electric ⅝, Goodrich 1¼, U. S. Rubber 1⅛, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Republic Steel ¼, Rock Island ⅛, Erie ¼, Canadian Pacific ⅛, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅝, Pennsylvania ⅜, Reading ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅜.

Among declines were Allis-Chalmers ⅛, Car and Foundry ¼, Westinghouse ⅛, Manhattan ⅛, New York Central ¼, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ and Atchison ⅛.

Steels, Crucible, Lehigh Valley and American Can were unchanged.

At the end of half-an hour the market had reached a higher level. Baldwin Locomotive was up 1⅝ and Studebaker showed a gain of 2¼.

TRADING QUIET HERE.

The Boston market was quiet at the opening with United Fruit the issue most in evidence. It started with an extra point and then lost part of the gain. Rights to new United Fruit stock were traded in for the first time, and sold at 3⅞.

Among early gains were Butte & Superior ¼, American Zinc ¼, Island Creek ¼, Pond Creek ¼, Shoe Machinery ¼, East Butte ⅛ and Copper Range ⅛.

Alaska Gold was off ⅛, Mohawk ⅛ and Shattuck-Arizona ¼. A number of issues were unchanged.

Nothing new was said about copper, spelter or tin.

CURLEY BLAMED FOR GERMAN APPEAL

A statement denouncing the appeal of Frank Seiberlich, election commissioner, to German voters, asking them to vote for the anti-Good Government candidates for the council because of Mayor Curley's sympathies for the Germans in the great war, was issued today by John J. Attridge, Walter L. Collins, James J. Storrow and Thomas J. Kenny.

These men criticize in their joint statement Seiberlich's statement as an attempt on Mayor Curley's part to secure votes for the anti-Good Government candidates by ordering one of his salaried appointees to force the war issue into the campaign. The statement reads:

The Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, has a perfect right, as an individual, to be a pro-German sympathizer.

We strongly protest, however, and we call upon Bostonians to join us in protesting, against the efforts of Mayor Curley to make his pro-German sympathies an asset for his City Council candidates. The European war is not an issue in this campaign.

We challenge Frank A. Seiberlich's appeal to citizens of Boston of German blood or parentage to vote for Mayor Curley's candidates for the City Council because the Mayor's sympathies are with Germany in the great war, as a proper statement by James M. Curley on behalf of James M. Curley. It is wrong for Mayor Curley to this city election to solicit votes from one of the most honorable and substantial respected portions of our citizens for the Curley ticket because of his pro-German views.

Many of our citizens who deeply sympathize with the maimed and wounded sufferers, the widowed mothers, and the bereft parents, no matter on which side of the conflict, naturally feel more disposed toward one side or the other as to the causes and the issues of the great world struggle. Men will necessarily differ for all time as to their interpretation of the significance of this struggle.

TO OUT OPPOSITE-HOLDERS:

We respect the viewpoint of those of German blood or parentage. Many of them are our warm personal friends. Their sympathies are to their credit. And if Mayor Curley is on the side of Germany in this great struggle, as would appear from his order to his Ballot Commissioner, Mr. Seiberlich, to issue this circular letter in German and translated for the newspapers, we have no criticism to make of the Mayor for his pro-German views and we respect them. Our objection is to the manner in which Mr. Curley has attempted to turn his sympathy into votes.

And if anyone thinks that the Mayor's appointee, Mr. Seiberlich, would have put out such a circular at this time, unless it was in accordance with the Mayor's express wish, that person is little versed in the political relations which exist between the Mayor and his appointees and subordinates.

We have been informed by one who was commanded to be present at the Mayor's meeting at the Parker House last Saturday, from which meeting representatives of the press were excluded, that the Mayor stated in his speech that there were some Republicans holding office under him, and that he would see that unless these Republicans voted for the Curley slate they will not be working for the city after December 34.

This effort by Mayor Curley to inject his personal pro-German views into this election, we submit, should be rejected by all citizens who have Germanic sympathies may be, will insist that a Boston City Council should be elected on its merits without regard to Mr. Curley's effort to secure votes for the Curley slate in the matter described.

ISSUE PURELY LOCAL.

Allow us to repeat. We do not criticize Mayor Curley for his pro-German views, but only for his attempt to secure votes for the Curley slate by ordering one of his salaried appointees to force these views into this campaign.

We are of the opinion that Mr. Curley's pro-German views should not change the issue in this purely local Boston city election for members to the City Council.

The issue remains:

Shall the citizens of Boston give Mayor Curley $30 Curley council to assist him in his expenditure of $50,000,000 during the next two years; or do they prefer a Citizens' council, elected on the vote for Mayor Curley or against Mayor Curley, but ever ready always with sole regard for the welfare of the men, women and children of Boston?

(Signed.)
JOHN J. ATTRIDGE,
WALTER L. COLLINS,
JAMES J. STORROW,
THOMAS J. KENNY.

In a circular which will be sent out to 15,000 voters, the Good Government Association indorses these four candidates and tells its opinions of the candidates it indorses in the same circular are the opinions of the candidates of the Curley slate, James A. Watson, William F. Doyle, Richard S. Fitzgerald, John J. Conway, Walter N. Baker and William Herwin, and the reasons they should not be endorsed for the City Council.

Female Help Wanted.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The best way to find just the position you want is to advertise in the Boston American's "Situations Wanted" Columns.

The American will gladly publish your "ad" absolutely FREE for a whole week if you do not get the situation you want after advertising seven times.

The cost of advertising under "Situations Wanted" is only five cents a line for one and twenty-five cents a line for seven insertions. Seven words count a line.

Your two-line "ad" will cost but fifty cents for an entire week and the American prints it another seven times if you are unsuccessful.

"Situations Wanted" Advertising should be left at the conveniently located Branch Office at 264 Washington street or the Main Office at 80 Summer street.

American Want Ads give big results.

Rich or Poor, Women Never Lose the Mother Instinct

They Were Created to Protect and Care for Others, and Without Something to Protect They Can Never Be Happy

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

IN the news of last week was the story of a rich couple who, lacking children of their own, had adopted two waifs to bring up and care for.

Not very long ago another rich couple, Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, took two little boys into their home to rear as their own children.

Because these people are widely known, as well as rich, what they did has been talked about all over the country—talked about and very heartily approved.

All the world, according to the proverb, loves a lover. This is not wholly true, but it is true that all the world loves a mother.

The mother instinct in a woman, whether lavished on her own children, upon children of her adoption, or upon anyone who needs help and protection, is the most beautiful thing in humanity.

The love of a mother for her children surpasses any love known to man. It is supreme unselfishness and devotion. It patiently endures poverty, hunger, suffering, even ingratitude.

Among a million mothers not one could be found who turned against her children, no matter how worthless and ungrateful her children proved to be.

Some time, when we have learned far more than we know now, we shall pension all mothers, as we have already pensioned widowed mothers.

Some day such will be the influence in the world of mother-love that there will be no ungrateful children, no son or daughter who doesn't try to realize all the mother has dreamed for them.

It will be a better world then, and there will not be any wars in it—big wars or little wars—nor any petty disputes and bickerings, that usually lead to crimes and sometimes to murder.

It is a fine thing to teach the world to appreciate the beauty and unselfishness of motherhood, to remind children who sometimes take the devotion they receive as a matter of course what their mothers have really done for them.

Lately a song has been written—a song called "M-O-T-H-E-R—a Word That Means the World to Me"—which, sung widely throughout the country, is always well received, because it appeals to the best sentiments of those who hear it.

It is a love song—but not the usual love song. It is a song about a mother-love, and that has made it widely popular.

That this song should become instantly successful; that its simple story should please everybody who hears it; that it should bring tears wherever it is sung, is proof that even in the wide scramble for money people are never lost to the deepest and best sentiments. And as long as they can be deeply moved by a song in praise of motherhood they can be depended on by their country—in peace or war.

250 City Employes in the Hands of Loan Sharks

The Credit Union Is Likely to Prove the Way Out of a Bad Situation

THE attention which Mayor Curley has drawn to the activities of the loan sharks once again raises some doubt as to the efficiency of our anti-loan-shark law.

Governor Walsh criticised and removed E. Gerry Brown for inefficiency in the office of supervisor of small loans. Mr. Brown contended that such failures as really occurred in the administration of his office were not attributable to any fault of his, but to the situation. Has the office been more efficiently administered since Mr. Brown's removal? Perhaps Mr. Pope, the new supervisor, will find himself obliged to repeat Mr. Brown's defects, and perhaps both are right. In any event, these repeated failures indicate the perplexity and difficulty of dealing with this important question by way of restrictive laws.

On the other hand, the Credit Union System, to which Messrs. Vorenberg and Filene have devoted so much time, is likely to prove the way out of a bad situation. The Credit Union System offers intelligent and sympathetic co-operation between individuals who may need assistance now and then. Those who have rugged paths in life to climb would find it as prudent to join the Credit Union as the men who are about to start on a rugged mountain climb in the Alps find it prudent to join each of the party to the other, so that in case one has the misfortune to slip, and thus needs help, the other can assist him for the moment until he has recovered his equilibrium.

The Credit Union has worked well where it has been tried. We ought all to try it here. It will supplement the restrictive legislation of the State and help many a worthy man or woman over many a rough place.

In the meantime, it may be observed that it is passing strange that two hundred and fifty city employes are in the hands of these loan sharks. Not every man who goes to a loan shark is worthy of sympathy. Many times, and this constitutes a considerable evil in the loan shark business, this money is borrowed as the consequence of dissipation or other extravagance, and means not aid to the man's family, but a subtraction from the family income.

The AMERICAN suggests to the Mayor that some investigation be made of these cases and some discrimination be shown between those who for worthy causes find themselves within the grasp of these money sharks and those who, for other reasons less worthy, have involved their families in a loss of income and the city in considerable inconvenience.

The United States government does not tolerate the attachment of the salaries of its employes. If an employe receiving good, steady wages gets his pay attached he is discharged.

This rule is too harsh to be enforced indiscriminately. But there are those who, in the interest of their families, need to be brought upon the carpet and told that a repetition of their conduct will mean discharge from the city's employ.

Let us help the unfortunate city employes and all others who, through circumstances beyond their control, find themselves obliged to borrow money. But let us help the FAMILIES of those city employes, if any there are, whose extravagance leads them to borrow money unnecessarily, by stopping the improvident practice of borrowing.

In-Shoots

When a man knocks his own town it is not always proof that he is a disappointed candidate. He may have had trouble with the tax assessor.

A poem that will touch the heart of the magazine editor is better than the song that makes the people weep.

There is no wardog so fierce as the individual who has army supplies for sale.

The fellow with profound knowledge of the Scriptures can always make you feel small in an argument, whether he can accomplish much in the way of conversation or not.

Every man seems to have his own definition of the word honor.

It is better not to always judge a woman by the husband she selects.

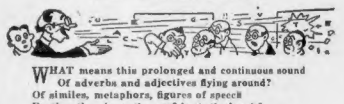
More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Cloture Debate



WHAT means this prolonged and continuous sound
Of adverbs and adjectives flying around?
Of similes, metaphors, figures of speech
Beating the air as the surf beats the beach?
Noun, preposition, conjunction and verb,
Past the poor power of grammar to curb,
Crash through the windows and fly through the doors
Till the frightened Potomac shrinks under its shores.
Sixteen million words have been said up to date,
The Senate is seeking to limit debate.

AL BEVERIDGE said a few words in his time,
Joe Bailey's command of the gab was sublime.
La Follette could start on St. Valentine's Day
And talk right along till the fifteenth of May.
But never before, since the Senate began
To stretch the elastic endurance of man,
Was moulded in one unrestrainable screech
Such free and unlimited coining of speech.
There's never a pause or a stop or a balk,
The Senate is seeking to cut out the talk.

TO cut out the talk; to put brakes on the gab,
To limit the time that one speaker can grab.
To blanket garrulity, dampen loquacity
And cut down a Senator's talking capacity.
And judging by what has been said up to now,
The earnest old statesmen will do it, somehow.
Their minds are made up that they'll pull out the clutch
And keep in the future from talking too much.
And they'll speak till the hour of cloture arrives,
If they have to keep talking the rest of their lives.

Dorothy Dix Tells Us How Idle Gossip Ruins Many Lives

By Dorothy Dix

"KILLED by idle gossip," was the verdict brought in by a coroner's jury in an Illinois village the other day, after investigating the suicide of a beautiful young woman who had shot herself.

It is a pity that the jury could not have gone a step farther and indicted for murder all who had bandied round the false and malicious stories that had first slain the young woman's reputation and then slew her. Certainly every scandalmonger among them was accessory before the crime of her death.

"Killed by idle gossip!" How often that epitaph might be written over a ruined life or a broken heart, and how few of us can hold up clean hands and swear ourselves free of blood guiltiness! We may not have originated the black story that blighted the career of a fellow creature, but we listened to it. We stood by and held the garments of those who stoned the innocent.

Our attitude toward gossip is passing strange. We all admit that the good name is the most precious possession of a man or woman, and that to rob them of this is to make them poor, indeed. Yet we, who would not take a penny from their purse, have no hesitation in filching their reputation from them. We, who are punctiliously honest and would scorn to pass on a dime whose value we even suspected, pass on a scurrilous story without stopping an instant to investigate its truth.

We, who are tender-hearted and could not bring ourselves to inflict the slightest physical pain upon another human being, have a ghoulish delight in tearing to pieces the character of even our friends, though there is no other torture that the victim would not rather undergo.

There is nothing sacred from idle gossip. Nobody exempt. It rarely even intentionally malicious. It is just an evil, miasmatic wind that comes from nowhere and blows everywhere, poisoning all upon whom it breathes.

A man and his wife live happily together, trusting each other. Idle gossip begins whispering over the teapots or through a haze of cigar smoke some vague suspicion of husband or wife that grows into a rumor, that spreads into a report, that crystallizes into a heinous charge, and a home is broken up by it.

A boy does something wrong in the folly of his youth. He repents, and is all the better and stronger man for it. But go where he will, idle gossip tells over the story with a thousand embellishments, and shuts every door of opportunity in his face.

A girl is silly and indiscreet. Nothing is really wrong with her, but idle gossip blackens her name until it drives her into becoming the thing it calls her.

Why should we hurt people with our tongues that we would not injure with our hands? Why should we blacken their characters when we would scorn to throw mud at their clothes? Should we who demand authority for everything else demand none for injurious stories concerning our neighbors?

Idle gossip does more harm than anything else in the world, and if the ladies who are so fond of reforming things really do want to start a reform that will do more for the happiness of the world than anything else, they will inaugurate an anti-gossiping crusade. And they can begin it in their own proper persons, for idle gossip, like charity, begins at home.

First Qualify, Then Ask

By Ada Patterson

A MAN who rose from a post as newsboy to that of vice-president of one of the great express companies in this country was talking about success. This is the most significant thing he said:

"Every time there was a change in the office force, when the position was one that paid more than I was receiving, I applied for it."

Ponder that. "Made a little nuisance of himself" is your snap judgment. Perhaps he did momentarily, for anything or any one who suggests a change from the established order is more or less of a nuisance during the process of the change, and preliminary to it. Human beings and conditions want to be "let alone." But it isn't best for them to be "let alone" at all times and this little freckled, carrot-headed lad saw to it that something was happening about them. The something was himself.

"Yes, I applied for it," he went on "and as a rule I convinced my employers that I was the best one for the position.

"Right here I want to say a word to young men who are earnestly trying to better themselves and their condition in life. Don't be afraid to ask for promotion or increase in salary if you feel sure you deserve it. It often happens that in a large concern where there are many persons employed you are not thought of, and some one less capable and deserving may be selected because he is more aggressive or more persistent than yourself."

"A bad theory to promulgate," growls some over anxious and under amiable employer of many. "It will encourage persons who are not ready for promotion to become pests."

That would be annoying to the employer, but the vice-president of the great company anticipated that objection. He said: "When I was seventeen, by studying hard all the evenings I qualified for a clerical position." It followed that inside of a year this hard working, hard studying office boy shed his office skin and became the agent of the local office.

When the express company he served began the business of selling drafts and other forms for remitting money in foreign countries the young man's interest was aroused.

"I made up my mind to get at the bottom of the foreign exchange business," he said. "I obtained every publication I could get hold of and compiled a book of tables whereby any amount of American money could be computed in terms of the money of other countries at the fluctuating rates of exchange. It took me four years, Sundays, evenings and during my vacations, to compile the tables."

The company heard of them and gave the indefatigable employe the right to publish the tables, agreeing to pay for all it needed. The tables can now be found in almost every banking and mercantile house in this country. You see, he qualified.

Inklings and Thinklings

Must ask the Public Service Commission or the Health Board to tell us where the hilt is on a pitchfork.
